Government Instructs Him To Prevent Any Demonstration.

Havana, October 19-Via Key West, Fla. A special dispatch from Madrid to El Diario de la Marina says that the government has cabled to Lieutenant General Weyler strictly prohibiting any demonstration on the day of his departure for Spain, and intimating that if these instructions are not complied with by him he will be held strictly accountable.

Many army officers who consider that Sagasta's policy of autonomy for Cuba is dangerous to Spanish sovereignty, have applied for leave to return to Spain. Lieutenant General Weyler has invariably refused these applications.

The word "treason" has been heard of late in several quarters where it is believed that the government intends to deliver the public offices into the hands of the insurgents, which, in the opinion of critics of such a course, would be equivalent to granting independence.

General Weyler has cabled the govern ment that although he has fixed upon the 30th as the day of leaving, he may embark a day or two earlier or later.

"War Convenient for Spain." La Lucha, in an energetic leading editorial entitled. "War is Convenient for

Spain." says: Spain," says:

"The sensational American press is renewing the campaign in favor of American intervention, wnich, it seys, will meet the approval of congress. Rather than that we should continue enduring this sort of thing, it is preferable that our American friends should decide to interfere. Spain has nothing to lose. Her case is the same as that of a poor man suing a rich one. The rich man is always the loser. Moreover, if Spain were to go to war with the American union it would be proof positive that in our national character still exists the traditional Spanish honor, which we would defend even more carefully than our lives."

Preparing for a Farewell. At a largely attended meeting of delegates of the trade associations and of the United Merchants' League, together with others described as particular admirers of Lieutenant General Weyler, held n the Spanish Casino today, it was decided to organize a great farewell "nonpolitical demonstration" in honor of General Weyler on the day he sails from Ha-

Newnan, Ga., October 20 .- (Special.)-An unusual tragedy was enacted on the streets of Newnan toright. Shortly after 8 o'clock three pistol shots were fired and Garr Pirson was found lying on the sidewalk near Satterwhite & Lane's stables with a bullet hole in his right temple. Blood was flowing in a steady stream from the ghastly wound, and the young man was gasping as if in the last throes of death. The only witness to the tragedy was Luther Fuller, a companion and friend of the young man, who made the following statement regarding the killing: Pinson and Fuller were together when suddenly Pinson drew a pistol from his hip pocket and told Fuller he intended to kill him (Fuller). Fuller says he caught Pinson and endeavored to prevent him from using the pistol, but that Pinson finally twisted his hand around and fired at him point blank, the ball passing through his (Fuller's) clothing and making a slight flesh wound in the left side. Off 30 Per Cent. New York, October 20 .- Not since 1892 has the potato crop of the United States proved so nearly a failure, says The American Agriculturist in its final report of the yield of 1897. Compared with the liberal crop of last year there is an apparent falling off of nearly 30 per cent in tonnage, and the quality of the whole is greatly deficient. County and township returns from all the leading potato growing states to this weekly newspaper show the yield of potatoes to be 174,000,000 bushels against 245,000,-000 in 1896, 286,000,000 in 1895, 185,000,000 in 1894 and only 155,000,000 in the short crop of 1892. The average rate of yield per acre is placed at 64 bushels, taking the country at large, against 86 bushels in 1896, 89 1895 and 62 in 1892.

The reasons for the disaster to the potato crop of 1897 are about as varied as a multiplicity of causes could make them. Standing out with more prominence than any other two factors are blight and rot, as a result of extremes of weather conditions. Excessive rainfall here and there, failure of germination, later serious drought, rust, scab, insects, etc., have all been prominently in evidence, though com-Mass.; S. K. Page, New Haven, Conn.; H. New Orleans, October 20 .- All previous records as to the number of new cases were three new cases had been entered on the books of the board. At the same time there had been six deaths.

These had all occured during the early morning hours, and it was characteristic of the day's events that although there had been six deaths reported up to 7 o'clock, not a single one of them had occurred since noon. The weather today has been not unlike that of the entire week. It has been cool and sultry during the nights and early morning, and especially calculated to produce fatalities. Of the deaths today two or three were the results of poor treatment.

was that of Ira J. Britton, Mr. Britton was the manager of the General Electric Company here. He had come here about a year. ago from Columbus, O. Taken down a few days ago he had been unable to rally and this morning he died.

Pascal Maggestrano, who said he was from Gassas City, walked into the charity hospital last night and said he was ill. A rapid diagnosis showed the man was suffering from yellow fever. He was quickly taken out to the isolation hospital, but he had not been there many hours before he breathed his last. The board of health official report is as ollows: Cases of yellow fever today, sixty.

STATE BEPARTMENTS 60 TO BIRMINGHAM

All Approaches to Selma Guarded by Armed Men-Unique Regulations of a Montgomery Suburb.

Montgemery, Ala., October 20 .- (Special.) The board of health at 1 o'clock this afternoon reported five new cases and one death for the day, as follows: .

DEATHS.

P. W. White, 426 Clayton street. NEW CASES.

R. A. Kazian and wife, who operate the natatorium. William Webb, colored, 216 Dickerson, J. R. Lemon, 116 Dickerson. Patrick W. White, the young lawyer who died today, was only twenty-five years old, but was one of the first young men in the state. He was the only son of Joseph M. White who died here last month. Pat White was unmarried.

The flight of the people from the city continues. There is not as much of the pell mell about the fleeing crowds as there was yesterday and the day before, but the departing throng is hurrying still. As near as can be ascertained here, Atlanta and Nashville are catching most of the Montgomerians. Atlanta must at this time be harboring something like 1,000.

When the average refugee left here he calculated on stopping at Auburn, Jacksonville, Montezuma or some other place of high altitude in the state. Governor Johnston, however, declines, and very properly it appears, to modify the state quarantine regulations so as to permit Montgomerians to stop even at points in the state at which they will be welcomed. His idea is that the presence of refugee visitors would be resisted by contagious communities and that this modification of the quarantine would greatly multiply the points for the state to guard.

It is therefore apparent that all refugees have been forced to pass entirely out of the state, and as some who have left here are known to be operating on short cash margins, it is feared that at least a few of the Montgomery refugees will have to find outside jobs or suffer.

The executive department of state has been removed to Birmingham. The department of agriculture is also there temporarily, and the convict department has taken its books to Speigners.

Birmingham is now practically the southern terminus of traffic on the Louisville and Nashville. For fear of the inadequary of the state quarantine, the towns of Jacksonville. Auburn and Tuskegee, for which places a very large percentage of the refugees were headed, have inaugurated local Selma's Determined Quarantine.

Selma, however, has the most determined quarantine of all. Every avenue into the central city is guarded. The railroads running in from the infected places have been stopped and the public road approaches are guarded by armed men. The people there are greatly disturbed.

Ozark's mayor had a Eufaula and Ozark train stopped there yesterday and fined the trainmen and mail and express clerks $20 leach for violation of the quarantine ordinance. All of the parties appealed to a higher court and the train proceeded out of town.

Highland Park, a fashionable suburb, has inaugurated unique epidemic regulations, but permits its own citizens, all of whom do business in Montgomery, to come to and fro, provided, however, they return to their homes by 5 p. m.

At that hour the town be!! is rung and protect his money at the risk of his life. Thousands decline to protect their lives because it would require the sacrifice of few dollars of the few dollars of their money. This seems almost incredible but it is true. Men feel of mankind, consumption, is slowly but swiftly creeping upon them. But in the mad race for money they refuse to stop and drive off the dread disease. It would require a sacrifice of both time and money and so sacrifice of both time and money and so they neglect it, until it is too late.

Many a man will

There is no excuse for this. A sure and quick remedy is at hand. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent, of all cases of consumption. It remedies all disorders of the digestion. It invigorates the liver. It makes new rich blood and builds up firm healthy flesh. It enters the blood and drives out all impurities, and acts directly upon the lungs driving out all disease germs. It builds sound vital tissue in the lungs. Thousands have testified to their cure by this wonderful remedy after they were given up by the doctors and all hope was gone. Druggists sell it.

hope was gone. Druggists sell it.

"I have taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and can and do recommend it every place I go," writes Mrs. J. D. Graves, of Salamanca, Cattaraugas Co., N. Y. (Academy Street).

"I am a traveling saleslady and have been for eighteen years. When I find people who are afflicted I tell them what Dr. Pierce's medicines have done for me. Twelve years ago I was given up to die. I had what all my physicians called 'consumption. I had hemorrhage of the lungs, night-sweats, and in fact I fully realized my condition. I begged of them to let me try the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and the result is, I still live and do lots of hard work."

Protest Sent the Governor. A citizen's committee, of which ex-Governor lones is chairman, today sent a scathing protest to Governor Johnston at Birmingham against the state quarantine regulations, which do not permit refugees from here to stop at any point in the bor ders of the state, even where it is safe and local authorities are willing to receive them. The committee called on the governor to reconvene the state board of health and have the regulation rescinded.

An Associated Press telegram from Bir mingham tonight announces that the "state government has been temporarily removed to Birmingham; that the governor and all the state officers have been located there.' This is a gross distortion of the facts. The state governent is located here by the constitution and cannot be changed except by vote of the people. There is no provision for temporary removal. The only allusion to anything of the kind is the power given the governor to convene the legislature elsewhere than the seat of the government in case of destruction of the capitol building or of an epidemic.

Furthermore, all the state officers are not located at Birmingham. Secretary of State Jackson, Auditor White, Treasurer Ellis and the governor's private secretary. Cary, are here, They could not get to Birmingham if they desired because of state quarantine regulations issued by the governor himself and also because of Birmingham's local regulations. The officers named are on duty here daily, and most of the governor's duties cannot be transacted without the co-operation of one of the of-

SOME STOP OVER IN CPELIKA. Notwithstanding the Governor Orders

Refugees Out of the State. Opelika, Ala., October 20 .- (Special.)-The mad rush of yellow fever refugees out of Montgomery still continues. Opelika seems to be one of the Meccas toward which many journey.

Despite the governor's orders, crowds of them are stopping here. The streets are thronged, and a hundred more arrived today. They will remain here until frost The board of health has adopted stringent regulations. All persons having guests are compelled to register them with the board of health before 10 o'clock daily. All suspicious cases must be reported at once, and the cleaning of all premises is made compulsory by fine. It is said fever cannot exist here, but no one wants to test it, and while it is firmly believed it will not break out, many are very uneasy with over 300 refugee here. Crowds of people watch the heavily laden trains carrying the people in great numbers away from the pestilence. There is not, and will not be, any quarantine

GOV. JOHNSTON CONFERS WITH TERRELL

They Settle the Trouble Over Wires. No Montgomery Mail Goes Out Until Fumigated Here.

For awhile yesterday a serious clash was impending between the state authorities of Alabama and the mail authorities of the United States.

Some time ago the general superintendent of railway mails at Washington instructed Superintendent Terrett to issue orders to the mail clerks in the fever district to allow no quarantine officers to enter mail cars or inspect the mail.

The quarantine authorities of Birmingham didn't like this order. When the epidemic at Montgomery was announced to the world for the first time, the people at Birmingham wanted to be sure that no infected mail was allowed to come from the capital city.

The local quarntine officers at Birming-am decided to cut off all mail cars from the trains, where the clerks refused to allow them on board. The state authorities determined to back up the Birmingham quarantine authori-

Superintendent Terrell telegraphed Governor Johnston, of Alabama, the exact sit-uation, and the matter was arranged on the condition that no mail should be allowed to go from Montgomery to Birmingnam. All mail must first come here have the big yellow fever germs from Montgomery killed. The trouble was all occasioned by a Montgomery newspaper. The paper was sent direct to Birmingham and the people there thought they could see full grown germs crawling over it. They first sent into this pure clime for pur.fica-

MANY FLEE FROM ALABAMA'S CAPITAL

City of Montgomery.

Said That People Are Leaving There as Rapidly as Possible.

ALL TRAINS FROM THERE ARE INSPECTED Refugees Talk and Some Say There Has Been Fever in Montgomery for the Past Two Weeks.

Refugees from Montgomery poured into Atlanta yesterday, and from the infected district were loaded with manic-stricken people. The Atlanta and West Point train due here at 11:40 o'clock in the morning, arrived two hours late with 240 refugees. The quarantine inspectors of Atlanta had their hands full, but they did not allow the train to enter the city until it had been thoroughly inspected. No one was found to be sick, and the officers gave the train a clean health bill

It is estimated that there are between 500 600 people from Mongomery in Atlanta at present. Three hundred of these arrived yesterday. It is said that the ple of Montgomery are leaving as rapidly as possible, and Nashville has received most of those who have left. Cheap rates have been offered to Nashville on account of the exposition, and accepting this inducement, the refugees have gone to Nashville in preference to other cities. Persons from Montgomery who arrived yesterday say that the city is in a panic stricken condition, and that business is at complete standstill. The stores are clos ing, they say, and the streets are deserted. The greatest fear seems to exist, and peo-ple are leaving as rapidly as possible.

The board of health of Montgomery is spoken of in no high terms by many o refugees, and there are those among them who condemn the action of the board in plain language.

A promient citizen of Montgomery stated last night that the panic was caused by the board of health, and it was alone responsible for the state of affairs that now exists in that city. He said reliable phy-sicians had stated that there has been Montgomery for the past two weeks. During that time the board of health, it seems, has declared that it was not fever, while physicians have differed on the subject. It is said that great in dignation was caused because one physician had nerve enough to make the statement that there was yellow fever in the lieved the board of health in preference to physicians, and when it suddenly dawned on them that they had the fever in their aidst, they at once became panic stricken and made haste to leave. Have Tried To Suppress It. It was said yesterday by one of the ref-

Then again it was hought that the fever could be managed and that as soon as the patients recov-ered there would be an end of it. Another refugee said he understood that here are at present nine cases of feve inder treatment, and that it is a hard man ter to get at the true situation. Many have ntimated that the people have lost confi dence, and for that reason have left.

Alderman Strauss Talks. Alderman L. Strauss, of Montgomery who is in the city with his family, was seen last night, and spoke interestingly on the situation. Being an alderman of the city, he is in close touch with the government, and knows the situation very

He said that Montgomery had done all in her power to prevent the city from becoming infected with the fever, and had taken steps for which she had be censured by many. The quarantine against Atlanta was established, he said, because travelers had taken advantage of Atlanta' hospitality and had gone from New Or-leans and Mobile to Montgomery by way of Atlanta. The fever had slipped in de spite the efforts to keep it out

"The people are badly scared," said Mr. Strauss, "and are leaving the city as rapidly as possible. Atlanta gets only a small portion of them, because they are taking advantage of chear rates." taking advantage of cheap rates, and are going to Nashville. Business is at a stand still, and stores are beginning to close up "When suspicious cases were reported, there was a great diversity of opinion them. The board of health declared they were not fever, while physicians were di vided in their opinion. The people be-lieved the board of health, and finally when that body announced that there was fever in the town, the people became wild and began to leave.'

ance of the Invitations. A large number of the organizations of the city that have been invited to attend to celebrate Atlanta have notified Mayor Collier that they will take advantage of the opportunity and make a worthy representation. The Capital City Club and the Fulton Club appointed committees yesterday and many pointed last night to meet with the com mittee from the council today in the mayor's office and make the final arrangements.

Colonel Candler appointed Lieutenant Colonel Woodward, Major Kendrick, Major Wilcoxen, Captain Massey and Captain Nash, from the Fifth regiment, to also meet with the other committees and arrange for the military. The entire regiment will not go, but all the companies from Atlanta will go in one battalion un-der the command of one of the majors. There will be about 250 of the soldier boys with the colors and the band and their gay uniforms will make a grand appear on the day, as they head the long parade down the streets of the Tennesse capital. Their new uniforms will be christened on this occasion and they think it an ad-mirable time for it. The handsome overcoat that they have just been supplied with will be worn and they will look spick and span in them. The committees which will meet this morning will outline the plans for the day, accept the invitation of the Tennessee people, make arrangements with the railroads and get everything in readiness for the trip. The police and firemen will go in numbers and the city fathers yesterday gave their consent for a body from each department to attend. The number which will go from each has not been decided

Charles Harman, of the Western and Atlantic railroad, said yesterday that he had received many inquiries from pri-vate citizens who will go on the excursion. He replied that there would be accommodations for all. He thinks that there besides the number who will go as repreentatives of the city. The following organizations will be rep-

HENRY GLORGE ACROSS THE RIVER Makes His First Appearance in Brooklyn and Speaks to a Large Audience.

New York, October 20.-General Benjamin F, Tracy, candidate for mayor; Secretary of the Interior Cornelius N. Bliss and Governor Frank Black addressed an audience of fifteen hundred persons at a republican meeting tonight in the Lenox lyceum here. The speakers and their speeches were enthusiastically applauded. This is the first time Secretary Bliss has spoken in the great municipal campaign. Secretary Bliss, after a few introductory remarks, said:

"I remember twelve months ago when men came to my office in this city with pale faces. They said: 'Is it possible that this Bryan business is to succeed; that disorder, socialism, anarchism are to the fate of this great country? Peop were pale; they doubted, they feared. Who election came it was all right, but over six million votes were cast in support the Chicago platform. That fight is over; that fight is continuing all over toountry, and it seems to be expected our sometime friends that we are to s our sometime friends that we are to suf-mit and let these people get their way. There are two candidates in this tow standing on the Chicago platform—on squarely, the other not saying much abou-it, but standing there just the same."

When General Tracy rose to speak met with another ovation, but it was not so lasting as the one he got when he en ered with Mr. Bliss.

General Tracy, in his speech, dwelt large ly on Brooklyn politics, and made an ar gument against the Citizens' Union. Governor Frank Black, of New York, was the next speaker. He said that the issues now are the is sues of last year. There has been no attempt to change them, and they are not even disguised by phraseology. Black Attacks Democracy.

Continuing, Governor Black said: Continuing, Governor Black sa.d:

"In every spot where the fight is on it is waged on the lines of St. Louis and Chicago. Socialism, anarchy, junk money and every wild-eyed hybrid that stared through the Chicago platform of a year ago will gather in knots next month around the polling blaces of this republic. He who pretends hat anarchy is dangerous only once in our years, that repudiation is dishonest only in national elections and is willing at four years, that repudiation is dishonest only in national elections and is willing at other times to keep them company, is him-self a dangerous citizen and unworthy of his privileges. You cannot divorce a city from the state, a state from the country, from the state, a state from the country, any more than you can divorce a citizen from his community. All are interwoven

By Alfred C. Newell.

Lawrenceville, Ga., October 20 .- (Special.) For two days the temperature has been of in elevated nature in this burg-not that the weather has been warm, but to fall into an expressive barbarism-"it has been a hot time in this old town teday." Gwinnett county has emptied her treas ires into Lawrenceville and spread out for rspection a prodigality of products un rivaled in variety and of such magnitude that the imagination of "Newt" Robison, who styles himself "the lone liar of Law renceville," cannot cope with the circum ference of the pumpkins, the fleetness of the horses or the beauty of the women. The first display of the Gwinnett County Fair Association marks an era in this sec on of Georgia. It is the beginning of a mighty movement which is to find its end in the quick deelopment of the boundless acres about and the rapid improvement in the methods n an agricultural line. The farmers of Gwinnett flourish now, but they are to flourish more in the future. They are on a hot trail of the solution of the southern farming problem. They have grabbed hold of the diversity theory and when the visi tors rolled in today they beheld an exhibit which would have played a star feature n a national contest.

These visitors came early, and the hor eople, too, arose early. There was no holding back on account of the biting cast wind which opened the day and sent a fine mist into the faces of the bearded farmers but they plowed through the mire, and when the sun scattered the clouds it show ed a scene of fascinating novelty.

Tethered in the groves about the town and on the public squares was a collection of vehicles of every description, from the antiquated rockaway to the latest cart. Beause of the bad weather on the day previous it was necessary to have most of the exhibits indoors; consequently a huge warehouse was utilized.

About this place and the public square was gathered a huge throng of chattering denizens who came to compare notes upor farming and farms. Collected there was the stanch yeomanry of north Georgia, the men whose toll and steady work ard responsible for the substantial growth and the solid prosperity of which they now boast. It was a scene of unique significance.

Before night's candles were burnt out he ruralites were on the move. At every ston between Atlanta and Lawrenceville they came in clusters, talking excitedly about the contest of agricultural products which excitement was intensified by proxmity, for as soon as Lawrenceville was reached these sons of the soil scattered from the train like frightened partridges and scampered up the huge hill which lee to the business portion of the place. In a few minutes they were collected about the display stalls discussing the merits of their crops and incidentally bewailing the effect of 5 cents cotton.

After the noise of the discussion had subsided a gray-bearded old man gave the olloguy a climax full of meaning.

"Say, you fellers can say what you want to about 5 cents cotton but this here county is goin' to suffer less than any section of Georgy, and why? Jes' because we boys have raised more corn and wheat and bacon-that's why."

There was an acclamatory corroboration of this assertion and an assentive bobbing of heads which indicated that the men who till the fertile glebe in Gwinnett have undertaken to diversify their crops and limit the acreage of cotton.

When the First Move Came.

It was the movement for the display for the Georgia exhibit at the Cotton States and International exposition which first brought this county to the front in an agricultural line. The people at first were loath to show what their soil brought forth but were prevailed upon by several in the section, and especially by Colonel W. E. Simmons, who was instrumental in the collection of the state exhibit.

It was glorious news for the people here when the decision came that the board of judges had awarded the county first prize over every other county in the state. What with the limited section of space and the shortness of the time allowed for the collection of the exhibition the residents of the county had not anticipated any material success. They had simply sent up the best they had. When the judges of the exhibits at the exposition, however, considered this, it was the unanimous agreement that the county of Gwinnett was to rank first in the agricultural line. In addi-

Since the exposition the people have been modestly cultivating and gathering their crops, but the experience of the exposition was a good thing. It was then proposed that a county fair be held each year, and catching on to the suggestion the farmers carried it to quick fulfillment. Colonel W. E. Simmons has always been an active factor in the development of this region. He is the head and front of many new enterprises and through his consistent efforts the present display was made. No chartered association has yet been formed, but the organization under whose direction the present fair is made will be a permanent affair and next year regular grounds and a more elaborate display will

A Substantial Success.

The present exhibit of manufactured and agricultural products, while not artistically arranged, demonstrates the superiority of the section. In a few weeks the managers of the enterprise gathered together what is shown here. Their venture has been a substantial success.

STRENGTHENS WALSH TICKET.

Ed Lyon Withdraws from the Bace in Favor of Phinizy.

Augusta, Ga., October 20.-(Special.)-An interesting development in the municipal campaign which is exciting much interest in Augusta, was the withdrawal today of Mr. Ed Lyon from the race for council in the second ward, in Mr. Jacob Phinizy's favor. Mr. Lyon was running on Kerr's ticket and Mr. Phinizy is running on Mr. Walsh's ticket. While the withdrawal of Lyon does not materially affect the standdevelopment and think the moral effect of it equal to a confession of weakness on the part of the opposition and is calculated to give Walsh stock a boost upward.

Quarantines Playing Havoc with Alabama and Georgia Lines.

WEST POINT IS BADLY DAMAGED

Run Through the State of Alabama Without Stopping.

STATE QUARANTINE PREVENTS LOCAL TRAVE

President Smith Is Making an Effort To Secure a Modification of the Latest Health Board Decree.

Mr. George C. Smith, president of the Atlanta and West Point and Western Railway of Alabama, has been notified by the governor of Alabama that the state both of health has decreed that no person from Montgomery will be permitted to stop at any station on the roads mention ed within that state. All of the Alabama railroad officials have been served with the same notice, and it is now impossible for a citizen of Alabama who happens to or to stop at any station or city within the state of Alabama.

This remarkable quarantine, which was put into effect yesterday, has played havoc with the railroad business of the state of Alabama and it affects several Georgia roads materially. The fever scare has greatly interfered with the business of the Atlanta and West Point and Mr. Smith stated yesterday that his road is unable to do business beyond Montgomery to Selma, and that the enforcement of the state quarantine against Montgomery will fur-ther complicate matters. Very few people are traveling toward Montgomery, New West Point brought in several train loads of refugees from the south. As soon as the a standstill and great loss will consequently fall on the railroads and other interests.

Mr. Smith After Modification. Upon receipt of the advice from the Alabama officials that trains would not be permitted to stop in Alabama to let off passengers from Montgomery, Mr. Smith of the quarantine so far as it prohibits Montgomery people from stopping at Ope lika and other stations on his road which have not quarantined and which are willing to receive the refugees. He thinks the people should be permitted to land in their own state if the cities and towns make Smith telegraphed Governor Johnston, of Alabama, earnestly requesting that the state board of health mod fy the quaran-No reply had been received late Must Leave the State.

The West Point officials struck upon a of the danger of remaining in that city during the night by offering to run a spe-cial accommodation train from Montgom-ery to Opelika every afternoon late, after business hours, and back to Montgomery every morning, permitting the citizens to transact their regular business during the day and to leave the city before night, when the fever germs are supposed to perambulate in the atmosphere at will. The road agreed to make a very fow rate for the service, but the Alabama officials put a quietus on the movement by refusing to permit Montgomery citizens to leave the confines of that city unless they left the President Smith stated yesterday that his company is doing all possible to relieve the anxiety of the cit zens along his road by taking every precaution deemed necessary for the protection of the people. No attempt will be made to land refugees where they are not wanted, and unless the state western railway will erun its trains out of Montgomery to the state line, near West Point, without stopping, and with the windows and doors closed. The situation with the Western and other Alabama roads is growing quite serious.

Board of Health Notifies the Railroad

Authorities Alabama Citizens Carnot Enter Augusta.

And now comes Augusta with a long range quarantine. That city has issued forth a decree which knocks into oblivion all the calculations and plans of the railroad people. One more avenue of travel has been closed to the fleeing citizens of Mont-comery and Fismaton, Ala., and other ineted cities, and not only are they prohibited from entering Augusta, but that city has extended the dead line to the safe distance of forty miles away.

Augusta has decided that forty miles is near as the unfortunate Alabamians ald be permitted to come and in an order bulletin senf out by Assistant General Passenger Agent Hardwick's office, of the Southern, agents of that company are instructed to refuse to sell tickets or to acpt freight or baggage for Augusta from the infected districts. It was at first reported that the quarantine extended only four miles, but later Mr. Hardwick was notified that the quarantine line had been fixed at forty miles. Just how this long range dead line will be guarded by the wily officials of Augusta, is not stated.

Peeples Is Cleared of the Charge Against Him in the Second Trial.

HARRIS FINED BY JUDGE FITE

Sharp Set-to Between the Judge and the Attorney.

AN IMPORTANT WITNESS IS PARALYZED

Trial of Cannon, Therefore, May Have To Be Postponed Against the Judge's Will.

By Frank Weldon.

Dalton. Ga., October 20.-(Special.)-Captain Tom Peeples was acquitted tonight. The run of hard luck changed and he got a verdict of not guilty of the charge of buying stolen tobacco from Walter Bo-

This was Peeples's second trial. He was convicted last week of buying a stolen carpet from the robber chief. His two sons ran away to escape prosecution. He was on their bonds, which were forfeited, and he will have to make them good. Yeserday he lost his position as agent of the Western and Atlantic railroad here and today the Dalton Grocery Company was put in the hands of a receiver. His sons were managing the company's store, though I am informed that they were emplayed and not members of the firm, as previously stated. The cards had been running against him. His bitterest enemy will not dispute that. People here were beginning to sympathize with him and some attribute this verdict partly to the feeling that the old man was down.

An Attorney Fined.

As matters stand now, twelve furors have said they believed Bohannon, and twelve have said they believed Peeples. The truth is there were more things in this trial than the evidence. There was the attack on the indictment, of which I will tell later. Then in the argument this afternoon of Peeples's lawyers, Former Solicitor Watt Harris was fined by Judge Fite. The defense had the closing speech and it was effective. So altogether there may have been contributing causes other than the testimony.

The finding of Colonel Harris came about in this way. He had said to the jury that public sentiment had changed. Then he added, "For some reason this defendant has been singled out for prosecution." Judge Fite admonished the attorney for making that remark. Colonel Harris bowed and continuing to speak, repeated the expression about singling out Peeples for "You must leave out such remarks as that or the court will fine you," interrupted the judge. "Well, leaving out all reference to Captain Peeples having been singled out for prosecution," Colonel Harris began.

not guilty.

A Witness Paralyzed.

The cases against Mack Cannon were called after the Pceples jury withdrew. est fy. Cannon was sworn and stated that Clemmons clerked for him for years, was familiar with his stock of goods and would testify if he could come to court that there was never any such stock in the store as Bohannon claims he sold to Cannon.

Judge R. T. Dorsey, the Southern railway's counsel, who had come up from Atlanta in the morning, said the state could show that Clemmons was not present when some of the deals were made between Cannon and Bohannon, although the state expected to prove that on one occasion Clemmons did pay Bohannon for goods.

Judge Fite heard both sides and announce ed that he would take the matter under consideration until tomorrow morning. when he would decide whether to go on

Dr. Wood, who is attending Clemmons, told me tonight that his patient is paralyzed on the left side and can hardly speak so as to be understood. His throat and tongue are both affected, said the doctor. He added: "Mr. Clemmons, who is now merchandising on his own account, was stricken on Monday at his store and had to be sent home. He has had heart trouble for years. On Monday morning he requested me to ask lawyers on both sides to be as easy as possible with him on the examination. He said that he believed if he were subjected to a rigid examination, it would kill him, and he would die on the Witness stand."

Dr. Wood stated that Clemmons could not under any circumstances be examined

"The least excitement would kill bim. He may get well or he may have another stroke at any moment and die. There is no question that the strain and worry over the prospect of testifying brought on this stroke. Two or three members of his family have died from paralysis.

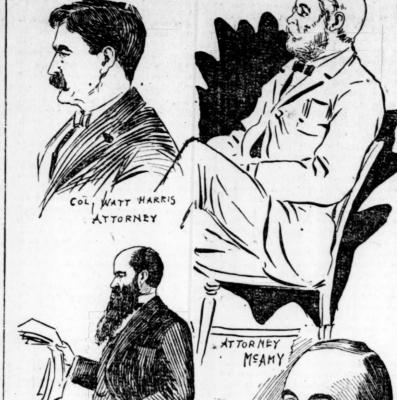

"I called on Dr. Gordon, who is the Southern railway's surgeon here, and he agreed with me in every particular that Mr. Clemmons was paralyzed. I realized that there might be some suspicion about this case, and for that reason asked Dr. Gordon into a consultation. No physician stands higher than Dr. Gordon."

May Have To Postpone. Judge Fite wants to try all these car robbery cases at this term of court. He says that it will be an expense on the county to bring the witnesses back from the penitentiary, and it will be a difficult matter to get all the witnesses up if the trials are postponed. Some bars in the steel cage at the jail were found sawed in two and t is reported that some of the Bohannon gang did the sawing. No one escaped. J. W. Cavendar, of Chattanooga, was appointed temporary receiver for the Dalon Grocery Company today. Mr. Cavender is a bondsman in some litigation in which the company or the Peepleses were nvolved. The matter was heard by a master, who decided against them. An Indictment Nol Prossed.

ind etment against John Robinson,

Robinson bought some tobacco four years ago from Ralph Ellison at a little less than the market price. Afterwards Ellison offered him more at one-third the wholesale price, and Robinson ordered him off, declaring that he believed the tobacco was stolen. Robinson told the incident at the time. Solicitor Maddox and the judge both state they believe he did not know the first tobacco was stolen.

Indictment Attacked.

As foreshadowed in today's Constitution the defense in the Peoples case attacked the indictment this morning as defective. The point made against it was that it did not allege any value for the tobacco which Bohannon said he sold to T. J. Peeples. The indictment charged Peeples with buy-ing 220 pounds of chewing tobacco from Walter Bohannon and it went on in legal phraseology to say that Bohannon had been convicted of stealing the tobacco from the Southern railway. The point had been made several times in these cases that a

"Mr. Sheriff, collect $5 from Colonel Harris," exclaimed Judge Fite.

The attorney smiled and went on with his speech. The judge delivered his charge and the jury retired at 4 o'clock. It was out three hours and returned a verdict of not guilty.

made several times in these cases that a plea of guilty does not amount to a conviction in the eyes of the law. Judge Fite overruled that point every time.

But here was a new point and the defense and state wrangled over it for an hour. Colonel McHenry and Colonel Watt Harris argued that the failure to allege some value was fatal to the indictment. They cited a number of supreme court decisions and the state came back with other decisions. Neither side had one bearing directly on this point. The defense quoted Colonel McCamy asked for a continuance on the ground that an important witness for the defendant. Silas Clemmons, was paralyzed and could not come to court to proof of value. As there must be a con-viction for burglary or larceny before there can be conviction for receiving stolen goods, so there must be an allegation of value for the goods received just as there had to be an allegation that the goods stolen had value. The state replied that it was alleged in the indictment against Bohannon that the tobacco had value. Bohannon pleaded quilty which was equivalent to a conviction. Some of this tobacco which Bohannon stole he sold to Captain Peepies. The value of this tobacco had been established in the Bohannon case. Therefore it was not essential, Solicitor Maddox argued, to allege sential, Solicitor Maddox argued, to allege in the indictment against Peeples that the tobacco had a certain value. Besides, it had been testified that the defendant paid $22 for the tobacco.

Judge Fite in passing on this point, said that his mind was not clear whether the bill was fatally defective or not, but he would give the benefit of the doubt to the state. The defendant had the remedy of appeal, but the state would have no rewere he to dismiss the case.

So the lawyers went on with the trial. Special deputies had been riding all night to serve subpoenas in Murray, Walker and Whitfield countles. They had gone through the rain, mud and darkness for many miles, some of them forty miles, calling up people all night long to leave notices to attend Whitfield court this morning by 8 twenty or thirty of them. They had been sent for to testify to the good character of Captain Peeples and to impeach Walter Bohannon. But not one of them was in-troduced. The counsel decided over night o pursue other tactics, and instead of attempting to impeach Bohannon, preferred to let the defendant make a statement and thus get the last argument before the jury. So the men from Murray had their ride for

The Defendant's Denial.

Boliannon was brought over from the fail this morning to the courthouse to tes-tify before the grand jury. While waiting to be called before that body he talked about his career. As a rule, he did not take a member of the band along when he went up the railroad to get in a car, he said. Generally he went by himself and would have two or three members watching for the goods which he threw off.

"They stole a good many times when I was out of the state," he said. "Of course it was all put on me, but some of the boys made trips on their own account. I heard that some of them had gone up to the coal chute one night and I walked up the track to see what they would do. When No. 52 came down the track I stepped to one side, maybe ten feet from the Holder, of Stewart county, who is president of the Georgia State Association of Clerks and Sheriffs, wrote a circular letter which has been quietly mailed to every clerk, sheriff and ordinary in the state. Sheriff Holder does not mince matters one particle in this circular letter. He calls a spade a spade in this fashion:

spade in this fashion:
"Lumpkin, Stewart County, Ga., October 16, 18%—Dear Sir: Briefly I wish to call your attention to a matter that interests you personally. The commissioners of Fulton county are making war against the offices of cierk, sheriff and ordinary of that county. At the coming session of the legislature a bill will be introduced, at the instance of these commissioners and adinstance of these commissioners and advocated by them, to put their county of-floers upon salaries instead of fees. I am not able at this time to give you the exact not able at this time to give you the exact nature of this contempaated legislation. These commissioners have not yet drawn their bill, or, if drawn, they have allowed no outside party to see it. I think I can safely give you a general idea, however, of the legislation they hope to pass. The main object or this bill is to change the system or paying the officers in Futton county. It contempaates turning into the county treasury all fees coming into these different officers and, out of that fund, the payment of small salaries to these different officers. The county commissioners will have charge practically of all these offices. They will have the power to fix the salary of each officer, to name the number of deputies for each office and to fix the salary of each of these deputies. In other words, it is an effort on the part of the county commissioners to take charge of and run these different county offices.

"This bill will be presented to the legislature in one or the other of the following forms:

"First, it will be either a bill applying

"First, it will be either a bill applying to counties having a certain population, or, "Second, it will be a general bill for the state to be adopted in those counties casting a majority of their votes for it at an election held for that purpose.

"We neither want nor need any such legislation in Georgia. If this rule becomes a law in Fulton it will soon become a law in all the other counties in the state. There is not a sheriff, clerk or other county officer in Georgia who wants to wear the collar of the county commissioners. Outside of any question of compensation to these different officers it is neither right nor wise to put them in the power of a lot of scheming politicians. A Tribute from the Bench.

That was a unique tribute Judge Fitpaid to The Constitution from the bench of Whitfield superior court, in the trial of the railroad rebbery cases. The report telling this story contains these paragraphs:

The Constitution figured in the case at the start, the defense trying to get a change of venue or a continuance on the ground that the minds of the people of Whitfield are inflamed, Eighteen columns of specials from Dalton to The Constitu tion were submitted, and thus a quantity of fine literature was injected Captain Peeples made an affidavi to the effect that so many people have been reading the papers that Whitfield wrought up at the present time, and he did not believe it was possi ble for him to get a fair and impartial trial in this community. An affidavit, signed by eleven citizens, stated practically the same thing. The lawyers had stack of Constitutions a foot high, from which they read. They examined a number of jurors, and all of them except man said that they had read The ution reports, but were not prejudiced or biased in their opinion in regard to th

Peeples case thereby.

This delicate compliment to The Constitution's impartial specials moved Judge

Fite to say:

"Gentlemen, the court does not think you can find a locality within the United States where you could find a jury of tweive men, none of whom read The Constitution. Its circulation is co-extensive with the country's boundary, and perhaps it does not circulate in the Klondike, but the court objects to removing the case there."

There have been fashionable institutions which held society evenings and taught the young ladies how to call and how to receive. Many a fond parent has been delighted upon the return of his daughter from an institution of learning to find that she was possessed of all the little arts and coquetry which tend to make a young lady attractive; that she understood which corner of her card should be turned down; that she was trained in the etiquette of calling and an adept in the art of receiving. Still again young ladies have been taught how to mix in general society. Advanced schools have had their social evenings, when all the intricacies of the modern reception were rehearsed. A Costly Municipal Contest The statement is made on good author-

Of course this statement applies not only to what may be termed the legitimate machinery of the election, but also to the vast sums of money which the various factions contemplate spending upon the purchase of votes. On account of the weighty interest involved in the election the temptation to employ sordid methods in order to win the fight is greater, perhaps, than ever before: and consequently money will be squandered without stint at the polls.

Divorce by Default.

The long list of divorces which is furnished by every term of every superior court in Georgia, must be a source of great concern to those who have the welfare of the community at heart.

It must be evident to even the most careless observer that the very law which was intended to make divorce difficult in Georgia has been prostituted into the most lax which is to be found in any of the states of the union. In fact, it has become the case that it is divorce by default instead of divorce by trial which has been provided for. This kind of divorce, one by which a plaintiff may place his plea upon record in a list of cases where it will be buried and carried through to triumphant verdict, is sapping the very foundations of society and creating much demoralization. The necessity for reform is one thing exists in a distant state, what are so great and so urgent that it should be given immediate attention, with the view of lessening the abuse, and of promoting scription book will sustain in a fuller the sanctity of the marriage tie

This is the highest mission of is one which is recognized for the sole purpose of protecting the lives and morals of husbands or wives, and was never intended to aid them in getting rid of their burden from mere trivial motives. The interest of the community should stand high above that of any single individual, because it is far better that the individual should suffer than that the community should have its good name blasted. For extreme cases it may be that divorce laws should exist, but the state should take upon itself the defense of the marriage tie, and see to it that in every application the case is clearly made out, and under no circumstance should a divorce ever be

The churches of the state could engage in no better work during the next few weeks than to insist upon such a change in the law by the coming legislature that no conspirator for divorce can carry his point Georgia, and that when a court is forced to the necessity of dissolving the marriage bond, it shall be after a trial in which the state has exhausted its resources to compel the parties litigant to abide by the relation which they voluntarily undertook toward them-

Why Protect Canada? If British protection of Canadian interests is to exist in name only there seems to be no reason why should remain longer under the flag of Great Britain. In commenting recently upon Canadian affairs, Sir Charles Dilke, one of the leading political figures of Great Britain declares that if Canada expects to hold aloof from the United States and to insist upon the due recog nition of her rights, she ought by al means to make some adequate provision for her own self-protection. Says the British statesman:

Canada has not sufficient arms for war, has gone the most advanced one step and if she wishes under all circumstances (as her recent trade action seems to show) to stand apart from the United States and to remain a portion, and an increasingimportant portion of the British em pire, she is bound to raise the numbers of her active militia and improve their training, and to supply them with proper transport and fitting reserve of arms. ada, as a military power, is altogether behind not only Roumania or Switzerland, but even Bulgaria, and is not in a position to defend her territory west of the great lakes. If she is to be defended under pres ent circumstances she will call on us to play a leading part in her defense.

This is strange language to comfrom one who is supposed to represent British sentiment, and shows either that Sir Charles Dilke is painfully lacking in discernment or else that public sentiment in Great Britain has undergone radical changes during the past few weeks. Of these two theories the latter is the most unlikely; for every shrewd Englishman knows that to force Canada to provide means for her own self-protection would be to aggravate her into throwing off the yoke of Great Britain. At the present time Canada receives absolutely no benefit from he colonial relations to the British government save the alleged benefit of pro tection; and Great Britain has decidedly too much at stake to alienate the affections of her colony by shaping her Canadian policy to suit the views of Sir Dilke. That such is not likely to be the case is furthermore evident from the solicitor's regard for Canadian affairs which Great Britain has recently shown in withdrawing from the proposed Bering sea conference. Evidently Sir Charles Dilke and the British government are not of the same mind, so far at least as Canadian affairs are con-

General Boone's Memory Honored.

Some of the descendants and admirers of old General Daniel Boone residing in Missouri have recently brought grave complaint against the people of Kentucky for their alleged indifference to the memory of the old pioneer, as evidenced by the neglected condition of his tomb at Frankfort.

Since this complaint was made, howver, the people of Kentucky have anand to show that General Boone has still a warm place in the affections of the commonwealth. As to the present dilapidated condition of the old pioneer's tomb, it is claimed that what appears to be the neglect of Kentuckians is due rather to the sacrilege committed by invading troops during the late civil war. Ex-Superintendent Ed Porter Thompson, of the department of public instruction in Kentucky, is the author of a recent school history of the state which deals at some length with the character and life of General Boone, and shows the esteem in which the old pioneer is held by the people of Kentucky. quote a single paragraph from this interesting volume, the following brief one is selected: "This man is justly regarded as first among the great pioneers of Kentucky, because he really opened the way for those who came with a fixed purpose to settle here, and led the van himself; because his experience, sagacity and courage made settlement practicable; and because his patient, faithful and always brave yet prudent service in behalf of his countrymen, contributed more than that of any other man to make the settlements permanent, and, at last, peaceful and prosperous." If this expression represents the feelings of the people of Kentucky, the sturdy old hero is most assuredly not forgotten But this is apparently not the only evidence of Kentucky's esteem for the memory of General Boone; for movements have been on foot for several days past looking toward a complete restoration of the old pioneer's tomb. Notably among other efforts to raise money for this purpose the Rebecca Boone lodge of the Daughters of the American Rev olution has asked that all the schools in Kentucky observe Friday, October 22d, as Daniel Boone day, and that every one who desires to contribute to the fund for repairing the tomb be given an opportunity at that time. If pres ent indications hold good, the desecrations of which the descendants of Gener al Boone in Missouri have complained will be completely removed ere many don't fear anything.

Hon. Roy Stone, director of the United States road inquiry and one of the most preminent men in the good roads movement in this country, gives some interesting facts about the work of convicts in California in a letter written to Governor Aikirson.

The letter is called forth by the writer's interest in the convict system of Georgia. The facts in California came under his own observation, and he believes they may be valuable in the consideration of the convict problem in this state.

"The situation in Georgia," General Stor writes, "is very much like that of California in this respect, but it is even more favorable to the development of the California plan. In California a portion of the state prison convicts have been put at work preparing road materials, which are supplied to the counties at such a rate as will simply pay the cost of maintaining and guarding the convicts while producing them. This plan, when fully in force, must be n every way beneficent and it does not run counter to any of the sound objections which your excellency makes to the direct assumption of road building by the state. It does not diminish the local responsibility nor the need of the local initiative in road improvement. It does not involve local the counties obtain this material in their turn upon application to the state. It does not compete with free labor, but by furishing cheap materials rather stimulates the employment of such labor in the actual construction of the road. It furnishes an occupation for the convicts which is both physically and morally healthful. The su-New Jersey, states that the opening of his quarry nearly emptied his hospital, the men were so eager for outdoor work. It does not involve any of the difficulties of transporting and guarding the convicts which occur in migratory work along the roads, since the prisoners can be housed in permanent quarry camps, in good locations, where they may be easily guarded and sufficiently secluded. "I trust I may be permitted one more suggestion," continues the writer. "California has used convict labor to develop the vast water power of the American river, a portion of which power is now emplowed in the state prison and in the state quarries and rock-crushing works, and the remainder carried to Sacramento by wire for the lighting of that city and for general manufacturing purposes. This example may be of value to Georgia, where many greater water powers are awaiting development and where the advantages for manufacturing are greater by reason of having abundant raw material ready at hand in the cotton product of the state.

"The labor of your convicts applied in this manner, with the advantages of your location, might quickly make them self-supporting, and the income from these water powers might go far toward ultimately supporting the state government, while developing new manufacturing towns and centers of population, which would make a home market for your other agricultural products as well as for your cotton, and in every way speedily advance the prosperity of the state. The city of Augusta attracts capital, enterprise and population by offering to manufacturers the cheapest power in the world, and still makes money out of that power itself. I see no reason why Georgia may not do what Augusta has done so wisely, especially as the state possesses the added advantage of having its labor without pay. "You are better supplied with railroads than California and very much better supplied with road materials. Your railroads would undoubtedly transport these materials at bare cost, as the California railroads are doing. The transmission of power by electricity would enable you to place your quarries where the best road material may be found in connection with the best railway facilities, and while awaiting the development of the water powers, you can open these works with steam at a very moderate outlay for plant.

"If a portion of your convicts can supply all the road materials that can be sold and the remainder gradually worked into the development of water powers, the prog-ress of the state in road improvement and in manufacturing will be equally rapid and sure. To accomplish all this it is only necessary to give your prison commission the necessary discretionary power in this re-gard and, if practicable, to establish a state highway commission to co-operate with them. Such a commission need not be an expense to the state: it could be comosed of some of the state officers and a selection from your many patriotic citizens who are already giving their services to the cause of good roads, and the actual ex-pense of the commission could be added to the price of the materials when sold."

THE POLITICAL TALK THAT'S GOING AROUND

The talk of ex-Congressman Charley Moses and his possible political ambitions was revived by his presence in the city yesterday.

Colonel Moses is quite emphatic in declaring he hasn't anything like a stock of political ambitions either at his Coweta coun ty farm or anywhere else, for that matter, and he is strong in his declarations that so far as he is concerned there is nothing in the talk of his being a candidate against Captain Nesbitt for commission of agriculture. There has been considerable talk on that line through the state and the former congressman from the fourth has been regarded as one of the most likely possibilities. Some time ago there was a good deal of talk about the probability of Moses entering the race for congress against Judge Adamson, but there is no likelihood of this at all. "I am devoting myself closely to 'my farm," said Colonel Moses, as he was starting for the West Point train yesterday afternoon. "Trying to make a living by raising 5 cent cotton. There isn't much money in 5 cent cotton for anybody, but I am trying to hold my own with the rest of the boys. The only extent I am in politics or am go ing to be in it, is to help some of my friends. I am not a candidate for anything."

The suggestion of Colonel Moses in cor nection with the office of commissioner of agriculture brought to the surface an interesting rumor at the Kimball last night, which is that Hon, O. B. Stevens, of Terrell, may enter the race. The man who suggested his name did not say that Senator Stevens is a candidate or has himself indicated that he is likely to be.

"What I mean," he explained, "is that a lot of Ob's friends in south Georgia are trying to get him to run and that if he does run he will prove a decidedly strong

Senator Stephens is one of the most popular men in his section of the state and he is strong in all parts of Georgia. He is a man who has been a prominent factor in political matters for some years and no man in the state has more sincere personal friends. His name has not been publicly mentioned in connection with the commissionership, and the suggestion that he may be a candidate caused much talk last evening. "If he listens to his friends he will go into that race," was the comment of the man who first mentioned his name. "And if he does go into it there will be fun, no matter who may be a candidate or how many of them there may be."

Speaking of new possibilities, another new one was sprung at the Kimball yesterday to add to the interest of the gossip that is going around.

This is that there is a well defined movement among some of his Macon friends to make a gubernatorial candidate of Hon. N. E. Harris. How much there is in this the man who started it going would not say further than is embraced in the declaration, "There is more in it than you think for!"

He made one other declaration which everybody else agreed and that was that "If Nat Harris should go into tne race for the governorship he would make it very lively for the rest of the boys; and still another, which met the approval of everybody, to the effect that if it should now or at any other time become ernor Harris," the state would add another to her long list of excellent govern-

There may be something in this Harris movement. It's worth keeping an eye on.

When Governor Atkinson made up his mind that he would leave the selection of the assistant librarian to the man who might be appointed to the head of that institution, he acted wiser than he knew. fight among the various aspirants at the time he made the decision, there has been a great increase in these prospects of late because of the many additions to the number of fair aspirants for the place. How many there are of these it is difficult to say; but the problem which presented itself to Paris when he was called on to do the umpire act won't be a circumstance to that which will present itself to the man who is librarian. Not all of those aspiring have made ap plication to the governor, though most of them have either written him or have had their friends to do so; but some are holding back their applications for the appointment of librarian with the idea of bringing every possible influence to bear upon the lucky man who gets the first place.

have the largest number of indorsements. She has gone about her canvass with the wisdom of a practical politician and the result is she has indorsements from a very large number of the public men of the state. "Her array of testimonials is strong enough to get a man a first-class mission or an ambassadorship," said one of Miss Elam's friends, who had seen the list of indorsements, and who was talking about her canvass yesterday. "If indorsements count for anything, I don't see how she can be beaten."

But there are several other aspirants whose chances are regarded as excellent because of the extent and character of their backing, and of course so long as there is nothing known of the appointing power there can be no certainty of the result. A new candidate was mentioned yesterday. She is Mrs. Simmons, of Crawford county. Mrs. Simmons is the daugiter-inlaw of Chief Justice Simmons, of the supreme court, and is a most estimable lady. Friends have written the governor recommending her appointment as assistant li-

A new suggestion was made last night in connection with the position of librarian. This was that there is a decided possibility of the position being tendered to Hon. Jake Beach, the well-known political leader, of Brunswick Whether the gentleman from Brunswick has ever cast his eyes with any longing toward that place is not known, but the rumor which connects his name with the office seems to indicate a decided possibility that the library situation may be sim plified by the appointment of Jake Beach. What a lively shuffling of the cards that appointment would mean!

"You can all talk of your beliefs and of your slates, but it will be well for those of you who hope to be able to say 'I told you sof to keep a close watch upon Judge Kibbee, of Macon," said a prominent Macon attorney at the capitol yesterday. He is a possibility for the railroad commission and if indorsements count he has an excellent chance of winning. Not that he is an applicant for the place-I do not suppose any of the mer who have been mentioned have de anything like a formal application for that position of honor; but very many of his friends throughout the state have written the governor urging the nomination water.

of Judge Kibbee and I know the governor thinks favorably of the suggestion. I do not, of course, mean that Governor Atkinson has said he is going to appoint the judge, for he has not made any declaration on the subject; but he thinks a great deal of Judge Kibbee's ability and there are reasons which induce me to believe that his appointment is possible."

If Colonel Wat Harris does not accept the appointment as judge of the city court of Cartersville, the reason will be that he expects to enter the race for congress from the seventh. He may accept the judgeship and still run for congress against Judge Maddox-though it is by no means certain now that the congressman from the seventh will have any opposition at all.

The only district in wnich active campaigning is now going on is the ninth and even there the work is all below the surface. It is generally taken for granted that Solicitor Howard Thompson is in the race, and he and Congressman Tate are both seen at every court. The campaign in the ninth looks differently, of course, to the friends of Carter Tate and the friends of 'Slick," but the preponderance of testimony f those who seem to be unprejudiced witnesses from the scene is that the congressman has the better of it to date. Both men are popular and both are shrewd politicians; and both know that the race is yet young. There was a possibility at one time that others might enter the contest, but it is generally taken for granted now that the race will be between Tate and Thompson.

How much politics there may be in the report of the Blalock committee, and how much may result from its creation, are features of every discussion about the committee's work.

There is much talk of this body and its probable finding, though nobody seems to have had even an inkling of what will be contained in that report. Among the things which the gossipers expect are:

A recommendation for the reduction of salaries of the railroad commissioners and of supreme court stenographers.

A majority report adverse to the state university and a minority report strongly ndorsing that institution. Suggestions as to improvement in the methods of bookkeeping in some of the state nstitutions, and perhaps some of the departments. A recommendation that the estate of the late Treasurer Hardeman be requested to pay to the state about $4,000, that being the amount of certain fees which the treasurer believed belonged to him, but which the committee thinks should have gone into the And a recommendation on the tag ques-

The details of the report are locked up n the breasts of the members of the committee. They will say nothing about it further than that when the legislature meets its contents will be made known. They are strong in their declarations that there is no politics in it; but as to whatever it may have bearing upon political events in the future-that is another ques-

I have been told that there is a well deined movement among some of his friends Macon and elsewhere to make a guber natorial candidate of Senator Nat Harris. low much there is in this I do not pretend o say, but if Nat Harris were to enter that race he would make it interesting for the rest of the boys. Certain it is that if he were elected Georgia would have another Ambelster and Arbuthnaut arrested and brought into our lines and hanged. A mat died in our county within the last sever years who tpld me he saw them hanged. This was the service in which my father lost his elder brother. His brother was wagon master or commander of a wagot train. The base of supplies was at Harford, on the north side of the Ocmulgeerivat, just across from Hawkinsville. I suppose that Hartford at that time was the shiretown of Pulaski county, so my uncle carexcellent governor added to her long list.

Will Key Charged with Shooting at Another Man. Last night about 9 o'clock Patrolmen Brooks and Coker arrested Will Key, who is charged with attempting to shoot W. F.

tewn of Pulaski county, so my uncle carried his train up to Hartford to load back with supplies, of which fact the Indian were cognizant. While the train was gost the water courses in that country. In the meanwhile the Indians built some scaffolds in the swemp of Cedar creek, in Dody county, so that when the train got into the fixed they could fire upon it from the scaffolds and capture it. When the train reached Cedar creek the drivers of the teams refused to drive into the creek, for fear they might be ambushed. This provoked my uncle and he proposed that if two men would ride into the stream, with him they would go across and see if there were any Indians about. They started in and got into the main current, when they were fired on from the scaffolds. The two men accompanying my uncle was wounded and fell from his horse, and called on the guard of the train to come to his relief, but instead of going to his relief, the train and guard turned back and left him to his fate. A man also died in this county who told me that he was along and how cowardly the men with the train acted. Some few days after my uncle's head was found on top of a long pole stuck in an old stump. In a short time thereafter several Indians was found my uncle's pocket-book. It is said that an Indian claims the boxy found on the person of his victim. Our men took it for granted that the Indian with the pocket-book was the one that killed my uncle, so one of the men cut off the Indian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them to my father in dian's ears and sent them The officers state that they have evidence going to show that Key went into the house and met Powell on a staircase. There was some dispute between the two men, and Key drew his pistol and, pointing it at Powell, fired. The ball missed its mark, although Powell's face was slightly burned by the powder. Key ran from the place after the shooting, and the officers had a long chase before they captured him. Key states that he fired the pistol accidentally while in the act of handing it to another man.

Praise for Miss Dooly.

From The Rome Georgian,
There is not a young woman journalist in the state doing harder and more effective work than Isma Dooly, of The Constitution. She has succeeded in making her page of that great daily one of its most noted and popular features. She has been invited to address the state federation, which meets in this city next month, and she will represent the Georgia press at the press convocation in Nashville on the 23d instant. Miss Dooly will wear these honors gracefully. Her pen is facile and her intellect vigorous. Her work for the federation has been unceasing and enthusiastic, and the federation has done a most appropriate thing in honoring her.

Poll Laughed Too Soon.

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer. Somewhere east of Wilson avenue there is a household who owns a parrot. It is a bird of, considerable linguistic ability, but its chief attraction lies in the depth and richness of its laugh. It is an unctuous laugh of exceedingly reaching power, and the bird apparently delights in it. Every time it tries the guffaw it ends up with the exclamation, "How funny!" Sometimes this is appropriate, sometimes it isn't, but the formula is never changed. The parrot has even been known to try it on funeral processions, and solemn-looking passers -by have frequently been shocked by hearing a ribald burst of laughter apparently direct-ed at them. If they saw the parrot in his cage, all well and good; if not, they passed along wondering what there was about their appearance to draw such unseemly

The bird caught the laugh and the concluding exclamation from the cook, a jolly person of African tint, whose good humor frequently found vent in this way. It was her laugh that the bird gave, which per-her laugh that the bird gave, which perhaps accounts for his giving it at times when it didn't seem to fit.

It als said that a very promising young man called one evening and sat upon the porch in company with the family and the bird. He is a fine young man, but a little shy. He doesn't talk much in society, although when he is drawn out his conversation is quite interesting. On the evening in question he was persuaded into giving a little account of a certain adventure he had recently passed through, and in the course of the narrative became quite animated. Just as he reached the critical climax in the story, he was rudely interrupted.

"Yah, yah, yah, yah, yah—how funny," roared the parrot.

For a moment after this jubilant outburst died away there was a dead silence. Then everybody laughed. But the sensitive young man couldn't be persuaded to finish his story, and he hasn't called again.

Captain Richardson was first mate of the American brig Naiad in 1861, when his vessel was captured by the confederate man-of-war Sumter, off the Cuban coast, Semmes being in command. A prize crew was put on board the Naiad in command of a sailmaker, whom, to the great joy of Captain Richardson, proved to be an old friend and shipmate. This, of course, made things pleasant for the captain, and he really enjoyed the period of detention. Captain Richardson is surprised at the great change that has been wrought in Brunswick since his last visit twenty-seven years ago. Then the town consisted of a few frame houses and one or two wharves. There were only two confederate man-of-war Sumter, off the one or two wharves. There were only two vessels in port at that time, and this was considered an unusual number.

"I was very much struck with the earnestness with which you argued and clamed that there was no danger in yellow fever patients in Atlanta.

"In 1861, when Charleston was stricken with yellow fever, a lady refuged to Newnan and put up at the Newnan hotel, where she had a relative. In a very short time she developed a case of yellow fever, and one day while sitting in conversation on the sidewalk leading to the hotel, less than 200 feet away, a gentleman came walking along from the direction of the hotel and said that a woman was dying at the hotel with black vomit, and did not create the least alarm un my mind, and I was satisfied that Newnan was located in too pure atmosphere for the fever to conserved. MEI I was satisfied that Newnan was located in too pure atmosphere for the fever to spread; and the woman died and that was the last of it. In the twenties I first heard of yellow fever. About that time my father bought a negro man from an old gentleman, one of whose sons was captain of a company, and the negro went along as a servant to his young master. This campaign was about 1818, the year in which I was born. The negro would frequently talk about the soldiers taking the yellow fever and how many of them did. They were stationed near father. This was the campaign in which General Jackson sent over to Pensacola and had Ambelster and Arbuthnaut arrested and brought into our lines and hanged. A man P. M. HUBBAR

The Disease Will Not Spread in This City.

THE VACCINATION IS THOROUGH

Mayor Collier Orders City Physicians To Vaccinate Free of Charge. The Situation.

No new cases of smallpox have been found since Sunday. Chief Sanitary Inspector Veal stated yesterday there was no cause for alarm on account of the cases that have been found.

The disease has been confined entirely so far to the negro quarters. There have been sixten cases in the city. In less than a week, according to Dr. Alexander, president of the board of health, Atlanta will be the best vaccinated town in the coun-

It is the plan of the city officials to vaccinate everybody who desires it, and many, whether they so desire or not. The physiclans employed by the city several days ago to vaccinate the negro quarters are still at work, and many thousand have been given an anti-smallpox dose.

This practice is rather expensive. Chief Veal says the city is now using $50 worth of virus every day. Everybody is vacci-nated free of charge. A fresh supply of the stuff is ordered nearly every morning and the vaccination will continue until the disease is thoroughly wiped out.

Mayor Collier sent a communication to all the city physicians yesterday morning instructing them to announce a certain hour when they can be at their office to vaccinate free of charge all those who apply. The mayor also instructed Chief Veal to employ another man to watch the incoming trains from the fever-infected districts. He will go to work this morning. The office of the board of health was a perfect beehive resterday. Chief Veal and his assistants were kept busy nearly all the entire day vaccinating white and black. Several cases were reported from different parts of the city, but investigation proved em to be false alarms. The officials say the disease will disappear in a very short while, and that there will be no epidemic.

BUSINESS MEN BANQUET TONIGHT

· Kimball House.

BUSINESS, WIT AND ELOQUENCE

Good Speakers Have Been Selected for the Occasion.

CAPTAIN NEAL WILL ACT AS TOASTMASTER

Governor Atkinson, Mayor Collier and Others Will Speak-The Menu Has Been Arranged.

Atlanta's representative business men. merchants and citizens will gather around the banquet board at the Kimball tonight to proclaim Atlanta's cause, praise its past and forecase its future; to testify to the unity of feeling among its business men for the future glory and prosperity of the city. Under the banner of the chamber of commerce 500 loyal citizens will rise and drink to the healh of Atlanta and pledge their best efforts to further the commercial interests of the city.

The banquet to be spread in the big hotel will in many respects be the most remarkable ever served in Georgia. It will probably be the largest. Seats will be provided for half a thousand, and nearly that many have already accepted invitations of the chamber of commerce to be present. It will be a notable gathering, ne representative of every business interest in the city, the bankers, grocers, dry goods men, insurance men, manufacturers, capitalists, publishers and every line of trade of consequence. The solid business men of the city, the quiet influential men, will join together in doing honor to the chamber of commerce, and with willing accord they will put the world on notice that Atlantians stand for Atlanta: that the business men are alive, and propose to push forward the interests of the Nearly every detail of the big spread has been arranged. The guests have been invited, or will be before noon today, the speakers have been decided upon, the menu has been arranged, the decorations will be made today, and everything necessary to the success of the event has been, or will be, done this morning and during the day. The great crowd will be well taken care of, and an enjoyable time is In store for those fortunate enough to receive invitations to attend the banquet. It will be a banquet for a purpose. And that purpose is to advance the interests of Atlanta. The speakers will tell how it is to be done. They have been selected with that end in view.

Speakers Have Been Selected. Yesterday the special committees ap-pointed by the chamber of commerce to arrange for the banquet put in a hard day ompleting the work assigned to them. The sperkers' comittee got off in a quiet oom and discussed the advisability of calling on this or that citizen for a speech, and the speaking ability of each prospective guest was talked over. The committee refused to announce the complete list of speakers agreed upon because it is feared certain of the eloquent gentlemen might find it inconvenient to attend the banquet. So the committee has made out its little list and carefully stowed it away in its inside pocket, only to be called into use at the banquet boards tonight. The REDWINE WILL NOT RETURN speakers will be taken unawares, and they will be called on from every part of the hall. Impromptu talks will be the order of the evening and eloquence will reign. Dr. Redwine Says His Son Will Not speakers consists of Captain T. B. Neal, Mr. J. G. Oglesby and Captain R. J. Lowry, and much care and pains has been taken to select such speakers as will know what to say and how to say it, insuring this feature of the celebration to be successful. Short talks will be the rule. Committee on Arrangements.

The committee on arrangements-Mr T. H. Martin, Mr. R. F. Shedden and Mr. Stewart Woodson-has about completed the work before it, and yesterday the severa! gentlemen devoted the entire day to looking after the details of the affair. The menu was arranged by Manager Sco of the Kimball, and he will see that the banquet is served in the most elaborate style and in a manner that is certain to bring renown to the Kimball and those in charge of the banquet.

The committee on invitations put in the day directing the sending out of the invitations, and several hundred have now been forwarded. This work will continue today, and the complete list will not be made out until late this afternoon. Citizens receiving invitations are requested to promptly respond in order that seats may be assigned to them and that proper ar-rangements may be made to accommodate everybody. No guest can be seated without a seat ticket issued to him before the banquet, and the committee urges every-body to send a response this morning.

Prsident Neal Toastmaster.

Captain T. B. Neal, president of the chamber of commerce, will act as toast-master at the banquet. He will sit at the center in the west end of the big dining room, and on his right Governor Atkinson will be seated. Mayor Charles A. Collie will take the place to the left of Cap-tain Neal, and the other officials and guests will be seated in the proper order. All of the seats have been numbered, and each guest who has sent a response accepting the invitation to be present, has been assigned to a certain seat. In this way the banquet will be served in good order, and there will be no confusion as to the location of seats and places. Ushers will be on hand to receive and seat the guests, and the managers will see that there is no crush and bungling in the hall. Captain Neal will call the banqueters to order, and he will speak of the purposes of the gathering, explaining the work ings of the chamber of commerce and telling of its purposes and the plans of the chamber to further and advance Atanta's interests. He will then introduce the speakers in the order agreed upon, and it is likely that Governor Atkinson will be first called upon to address the gathering. This will be after the banquet has been served, when the boards have been emptied and when the sparkling bever-ages flow freely. Mayor Collier will speak in turn, and then other prominent officials and citizens will be called upon.

The Banquet Menu. The menu prepared for the occasion as follows:

Blue Points Consomme en Tasse Olives
Broiled Pompano Maltre d'Hotel Clarei
Pommes Julienne
Filet de Bouef aux Champignons

SOUTHERN MUTUAL FILES ITS REPORT

Condition of Affairs.

Total Liabilities Are $879,208.66 with Resources of Only $65,262.53.

STOCKHOLDERS MAY GET NOTHING

Withdrawels Filed Sixty Days Previous to the Failure Exceeded the Sum of $160,000.

The report of Receivers James A. Andersond and M. A. O'Byrne, of the Southern Mutual Building and Loan Association, was presented the stockholders yesterday. Attached to the report is a general statement compiled from the association's books by Accountant B. F. Moore showing that the assets of the association are more than $200,000 less than the liabilities.

The Southern Mutual is the building and loan association which was organized and engineered by W. C. Hale, who was president, and who is now badly wanted in Atlanta to answer to the criminal charge of embezzlement. Soon after the application for receiver. President Hale fled from the city, and although rewards have been offered for his arrest, he has successfully escaped the service of the warrant.

The report of the receivers, which was filed yesterday, gives a complete review of the situation in the affairs of the defunct association and its pages are tedious with statements in which thousands of figures appear. It is the opinion of the receivers that the stockholders may receive 25 per cent, probably more and very probably less. It may be considerably less from the fact that the securities are now said to be worth much less than their face value.

In conclusion, the report says: "We deem it proper to advise you at this time that some of the stockholders who had filed withdrawal notices, under the by-laws sixty days prior to the failure of the asso ciation, contend through their attorneys, that they are creditors and must be paid in full before the other stockholders can expect to draw a dividend. Should this contention be sustained, shareholders who did not file such notice of withdrawal, will probably get nothing, since the value of shares under notice of withdrawal amounts to about $160,000." The financial statement is as follows: ASSETS. Bills receivable, notes, bonds, etc. 55,512 27 Loans advanced on stock Personal debtors.................................. State Savings bank... ..$30,483 36

Friends Will Try and He Hopes They Will Be Successful-Only a Few Weeks Longer.

Although it is authoritatively stated that Lewis Redwine will be given a pardon before his term of servitude expires in a few weeks, his father, Dr. Columbus Redwine, says that he knows nothing of it, but hopes that it may be obtained. When seen yesterday Dr. Redwine said that he had not received any information of a pardon for his son and all he knew of it was what he saw in The Constitution. He said that there were friends of the family that have been working for a pardon for a long time and he hoped that now as the time for him to be released was so near he might be given his citizenship. "He will not," continued Dr. Redwine, "return to this city. I have not heard from him in several weeks, but the last time he wrote to me he said he would not return. I don't know what his plans are for the future: he has never said. I think he will begin a new life somewhere and make something of himself again."

TRADED SUGAR FOR WHISKY. Had Credit at the Grocery, but None

at the Saloon. The recorder had a trading genius before him yesterday afternoon. The name of Charles Brown, colored, was called and a dapper looking negro stepped forward to answer to a charge of disorderly enoduct. The testimony against Brown was that he went into a saloon and tried to swap four pounds of sugar for a pint of whisky. The saloon keeper wouldn't agree to trade and Brown became angry and proceeded to tell him what he thought of him in lan-guage inelegant and blasphemous.

When asked what he had to say in extenuation of such conduct, Brown said he did go into the saloon to trade the sugar for whisky; that he had made similar trades in that barroom before, but the clerk refused to do what the proprietor had often done for him. "Where did you get the sugar?" asked

"I bought it," was the reply. "Then why didn't you pay for the whisky with the money with which you bought the 'Cause I had credit at the grocery store where I got the sugar, and didn't have any credit at the saloon. I'se been doing that way, judge, for a long time. I runs an account at the grocery store and when I want a little liquor I buy sugar and trades it off." Judge Andy said there wasn't any law against such trading, out Brown didn't have the right to curse out anybody who didn't wish to barter whisky for sugar. In the fall there is danger to health in decaying vegetation, cold and dampness and sudden changes in temperature. Keep the blood pure and appetite good at this season by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

After the man and woman got into the vehicle she turned the entire load of her pent-up wrath on him. Then she decided that a tongue lashing wasn't enough and she jumped on the poproperty or business in any manner until the hearing of the case or the further order of the superior court. The case was liceman as the wagon rolled over the set for a hearing in chambers on October 30th, at which time the defendants are to

"I am sending your report for insertion in some leading English papers, so that Bishop Netson's breatnern in holy orders on the other side of 'the nerring pond' may' see what he thinks of what he saw white in the old country. I feel I should say 'what he did not see.' His remarks anent the prince (generally admitted to be the best dressed gentieman in Europe), the lord mayor and the right reverend bishop so and so, will doubtless amuse these gentlemen, to whose notice his statements will doubtless be brought.

"Now, as to the bishop's statements about shees, allow me to inform him that the shoe with the pointed toe has been on sale in England for years. I believe I am correct when I say that one of the most handsome shoe stores in London belongs to an American. This country ships shoes to the United Kingdom by the tens of thousands. The majority of Britishers prefer the 'square toe' as being more comfortable and more in conformity to nature. Regarding the 'noise,' wherever can the bishop have been of hight? I expect he has been doing the slums. I admit if you stand in front of large public works and the pavement happens to be dry and watch the sons of toil going in to their work by the hundreds you will hear a good noise, but it is of metal.

"Oh, that the bishop's remarks about cigarettes were true! How often in perusing a paper we read an account of a suicae: cause, 'cigarettes.' It is a nuisance the number of working lads that will stop you to beg the cigarette in your hand. His remark about 'the queen and Worcester china' is not in good taste.

"I have lived in hotels in almost every city in Great Britain, but never yet saw the 'hot water bottle' referred to. I do not remember of sitting down to breakfast or lunch without a napkin. It is the exception to see jam on the breakfast table, but marmalade is often there. I do admit our baggage system is far from perfect, and our railways would do well to copy the American plan.

"There is wit and humor in reading charged with cheating and swindling by Mr. J. L. Smith, says the case was unjustly made on account of the lack of information. He ways he sold the goods on a cash basis the check which he received not to be cashed until the goods were delivered. He forwarded the order to his house. The chainless arrangement is very simple and causes the wheel to run easies and with less noise than the chain wheel. The wheel is quite a novelty and has just been placed on the market. It will probably be on exhibition to the public today. It is understood that a number of prominent Atlanta riders will now put their old wheels aside and use the chainless machine.

Claim That the Southern Is Afraid To Haul the Whisky Because of a Threat.

Fear and unfair discrimination are the bitter charges thrown at the Southern railway by Bluthenthal & Bickart in an amendment which they have just filed to their original bill against the Southern. Additional emphasis is laid on the charge of conspiracy against the Southern as the state officials of South Carolina. The whisky people charge that the Southern persists in its refusal to haul the whisky of Bluthenthal & Bickart, because of threat made against the road by the state government of South Carolina. Original packages in the form of secure wooden boxes have, according to the plaintiffs, been provided for the shipments of whisky and the firm of Bluthenthal & Bickart has announced to the Southern railway officials its willingness to ship all goods in the wooden packages, but the plaintiff alleges the road's officials firmly refuse to carry the goods even if packed as required.

Our advertising doesn't over-rate. The statements are studied and conservative. We had rather say too little than too much. Carefulness is a salient element in all our public announcements. Hard for you to appreciate our sincerity while digesting the foregoing. The spirit of the times is the reverse of the principles that control our policy. Truth and old-fashioned square dealing have a rough time triumphing over the glamour, the subterfuge and the bold charlatanry of modern trade. Our purposes are clearly defined; our plans are as exact as the binomial theorem; our methods challenge impartial criticism and comparison. No man or woman who has thrift in his or her character can afford to ignore the news contained in the surrounding subdivisions of this page. There are interesting references to merchandise that chime in with the personal and domestic needs of the season. The governing charm is centered in the consistency of qualities and the remarkable reasonableness of prices. If you will thoroughly and intelligently consider the one in connection with the other you will grasp the absurdity of the extravagant and exaggerated forms of self-laudation indulged in by competition that look so lurid in the columns of the daily papers. You can't get away from bold, bare, basic facts. We have a store, we have a stock, we have a system that combines all the vital economies of the period. The famous baggage case has not been called by Judge Calhoun, of the recorder's court. Judge Anderson has not finished his supreme court work and stated yesterday

the Coliseum.

MANY EVENTS ARE BOOKED

Bald, Eaton, Walthour and Loughead Will Contest for the Honors.

HOT FOUR CORNERED RACE IS PROMISED

The Tandem Teams Will Warm the Best Mile Record and It May Be Broken Tonight.

The great four-cornered race will be run onight at the collseum between the four stars-Walthour, Eaton, Bald and Loug-

Bald and Loughead reached the city last night from Memphis, and they will be on the track facts morning for a practice spin. They are all in fine fettle, for they all realize that it is to be the hardest race that any of them ever had to run. There has never been a race in the city on which there was so much money placed as the race tonight. Many bets were placed yesterday, and today many dollars will be staked on the outcome of the great event. One of the bets staked yesterday was $10 to $25 on Walthour against the field. Another of the numerous bets placed was one of $8 to $10 on Eaton against the field. Several bets of even money were staked that Loughead would be the last man in the race. The fact that even money is placed that the mile national champion of America will be the last man in a race of that distance ought to indicate that the race will be a very hot one. Bets of two to one were placed that Bald would beat Eaton, and also two to one that Eaton would beat Walthour. If there can be such a thing as a favorite against the field in a four-cornered race, Eaton seems to be the favorite in this race. The betting may change today if Bald and Loughead display a desire to bet on themselves. It is a terribly hard race to pick and the odds ought to be about five to one to call the order that all four men will quite lively, and many bets were placed of even money that Winsett and Chapman would beat Repine and Spier. The other two teams are not considered in it with these two. The tandem race is going to be fast, and the chances are the spectators will see the fastest mile ever made on the track.

The Riders in Practice. In practice Eaton and Walthour both show up well, but Bob has let himself out more, and has so far made the best time. His mile, made in the fast time of 1:58, boosted his stock way up, and those who saw it made are confident that he will beat Eaton. Eaton, however, has not done his best in public, and is evidently holding something up his sleeve. In the practice yesterday Walthour made several sprints that ought to land him winner tonight. Behind the tandem manned by Repine and Spier, Walthour rode a lap so fast that his pedals hit the floor, or he would have probably beat them out, as he was very rapidly gaining on them. Eaton was also sprinting, but evidently not doing his best. Eaton is very confident that he will win, and has placed money that he will win first place. His trainer, Bolles, said yesterday after the practice: "I consider that Jay is now in perfect condition, and will double my offer to bet $50 that he wins, and make it $100 that he beats any man picked out of the crowd. I do not let him do his best in practice, but he has a sprint that will surprise some of these people, and you can bet all your money that he will beat Bald off of the

The race is to be run in heats of one $10. The race will be paced by Foote and Tatum, on the Dayton tandem, and they have let it out that it is going to be faster than anything yet run on the track. The first heat will be between Eaton and Walthour, and will probably be the heat of the race, as Walthour will do all in his power to beat the Jerseyman. The first race will be called at 8:15

the Grant Structure.

Outside World.

MERCHANTS WERE KICKING

CONTRACTOR WILL APPEAL TO COUNCIL

Work Has Ceased, However, for the Present-Pittman Studies the Law on the Subject.

The contractors of the Grant building, now in course of erection on Walton, Broad and Forsyth streets, have been building a high fence around the large opening in the ground for the protection of the public. The fence when completed would have been about fifteen feet high and is planted almost in the center of the streets. The merchants in the vicinity have been eyeing this fence rather gravely for several days. At present only the posts are up. The merchants knew that when the planks were nailed on their establishments would be practically shut out from v.ew of one-half of the outside world until the building was completed.

Said merchants counciled together therefore and determined to enter a vigorous kick against such an alleged Infringment of their rights. A delegation was appoint-ed to call on Building Inspector Pittman. They called yesterday, sang their tale of woe and departed.

The inspector forthwith began a diligent search of his law books. He wanted to prepare himself on the fence question. He saw where contractors were allowed onchalf the street to a short distance of the car line, but there was no statute allowing fences to be built on the public thoroughfares. Pittman therefore sallied forth to find the contractors. He ordered work to be stopped at once on that fence; that the fence would have to come down. Said contrac-tors would not agree to take down the obstruction and wanted time in which to appeal to council. Pittman granted this request, provided work should cease. The fence, therefore, may never be completed.

The contractor was busy yesterday visitng the several merchants contiguous to the fence for the purpose of a conciliation.

A petition may also be prepared for counil requesting the permission to clothe the resome looking posts with planks. The decision will be a valuable precedent for contractors in future. In the meantime the merchants anxiously await the result.

People Should Be Prohibited from Crowding About an Officer.

DANGER OF SERIOUS TROUBLE

A Policeman Might Be Protected Like a Judge on the Bench-What an Officer Says About It.

The police authorities are discussing the passage of a new and very important city ordinance, and it is probable that the new law will soon go into force, as all those connected with and interested in the police department are anxious to see some such ordinance passed.

ordinance passed.

It is an almost daily occurrence that the policemen, when making arrests, are bothered by the interference of outsiders. This interference is of such a nature as not to make out a case of interfering or resisting an officer in the discharge of his duty as comes within the scope of the ordinance touching upon this subject. Only a few nights ago when a young man was arrested several of his friends were indignant because he was taken to the police barracks in the patrol wagon, and only the coolness and forbearance of the officer prevented serious trouble.

As the law now is, a citizen can stand off and talk about and criticise a police-man while he is making an arrest and not fear any trouble himself. Time and again serious riots have been narrowly averted by the congregation of outsiders around a policeman and a prisoner, and this is more frequently the case when arrests are made on such streets as Decatur and Peters, where negroes col-

This matter has been pretty freely discussed by officers at the barracks for several weeks, and it is probable that it will be brought to the attention of the police board at its next meeting. One of the officers, speaking of the new law under contemplation, said yesterday to a representative of The Constitution:

"Policemen are having too much trouble the making of arrests. I believe some afternoon he would take up the baggage Alston. Special Master Hill adhered to in the making of arrests. I believe some matter just as soon as he could get to it. practice some people have of gathering about a policeman when he has a prisoner in charge. It would be nothing but right to place the officer who has a prisoner in custody in the same position as a court in session. When an officer has a prisoner he is then the law, and should be so respected. This is the point I make: You can criticise the recorder as much as you please out in the street, but you wouldn't dare to do it in the courtroom while court was in session. Now, a policeman when he has arrested a man and has hold of him should be on the same footing as the court in session, and those who insult him or interfere with him by word as well as act should be arrested. I know there is a sort of general law on the subject, but it is too indefinite and broad in its application. We need a specific ordinance. One man standing in a crowd can, by a very few words, excite a rlot. I do not gay this to save the feelings of the policemen, for they are ex-pected to take more than any ordinary citizen, but it is in the name of peace and good order that such a law as I suggest should be passed. Just let an arrest of a negro be made on Decatur street some Saturday night, and in half a minute the officer and prisoner are surrounded by a hundred or more people, and two-thirds of them will sympathize with the prisoner. Why, only a week ago there came very near being a riot on Decatur street because of the arrest of a negro. Negroes drew knives and threatened to assault the policeman."

Some of the police commissioners have been spoken to about the matter and they have promised to look into it and if it is deemed feasible some sort of an ordinance may be introduced into the council which will prevent crowds gathering around an

Objected To Being Fenced in from the FIVE-CENT FARES RESTORED President Simmons Says He Will Now

> Co-Operate with the Purchasers. THIRTEEN ACRES WILL NOT BE SOLD

Only the Cemetery Property Proper Will Be Sold by the Receiver on Next Sale Day.

The funeral car of the Chattahoochee rolley line made its first trip yesterday to Hollywood cemetery since the sale of the cemetery several days ago by Receiver Curran. The litigation involving the cemetery which resulted in its sale, caused President C. J. Simmons, of the Chattahoocheeline, to take off his funeral car and raise the fares from 5 to 10 cents from the city to the cemetery. This action on the part of the street car company was the result of the sale of thirteen acres of land ad joining the cemetery which the company claimed was given it by W. A. Baker as an inducement to build the road.

When this piece of property was not excluded from the sale, President Simmons issued orders to his superintendent to take off the funeral car and also to charge 10 cents to the cemetery instead of 5 cents.
"I was to be given the thirteen acres," announced President Simmons on the day announced President Simmons on the day of the sale, "as one of the inducements for the building of my road from the city to the Chattahoochee river, the fine to be run near Hollwood. Now, if these gentlemen do not protect me in this matter and allow the property claimed by my road to be sold, then I do not intend to co-operate with the purchasers in the building of the cemetery. The cemetery can be reached only by the trolley line and I can easily afford to take off my funeral car and raise fares to 10 cents if the cemetery people can stand it."

The sale of the cemetery was never confirmed, as the parchase price was not paid to the receiver and the court theretupon refused to confirm the sale and execute the title. After a lengthy argument conducted last week before Judge Lumpkin in chambers, it was decided to resell the cemetery and to exclude from this sale the thirteen acres claimed by President Simmons. This was the compromise reached between President Simmons and the receiver, and as soon as the last order was passed excluding the thirteen acres. President Simmons issued instrucand the receiver, any as soon as the last order was passed excluding the thirteen acres, President Simmons issued instructions restoring fares from the city to the cemetery to 5 cents and instructing his superintendent to place the funeral car'at the request of any patron.

CASE DISMISSED BY RECORDER

Mahoney Makes His Statement in the

MRS. GILMER HAS DISAPPEARED

The Recorder Decides To Dismiss the Case Against the Man-Last Act in the "Mystery."

The third and last act of the "Mystery of the Bleeding Lady" was enacted in the police court yesterday afternoon. The heroine was still absent, and Attorney Corrigan, who represented Mr. Ed Mahoney, explained to the court that they had still been unable to find Mrs. W. B. Glimer and would have to make a return of "non est inventus."

inventus."

The recorder smiled and remarked he had no idea that the lady would ever put in an appearance.
Mr. Corrigan said his client wished to make a statement and Mr. Mahoney came

Mr. Corrigan said his client wished to make a statement and Mr. Mahoney came forward and said:

"I was in the house at 64 South Forsyth street Monday night to see Mrs. Glimer. I did not go there until between 9 and half-past 9 o'clock. I had known Mrs. Glimer in Macon, where I boarded with her, but I had not seen her for two and a half years until Monday night, except one time on the 5th of last August, when I talked to her a few minutes in the arcade of the Kimball house. So far as I know of Mrs. Glimer she was always a perfect lady and her character was above reproach. When I called to see her Monday evening she appeared to be under the influence of something, probably morphine, and she was also greatly excited. She was separated from her husband, and she showed me three letters she had received from him, all dated October 6th. I merely glanced at the letters, and while I was doing so she got up and excused herself and left the room. She was crying and I saw that she went on the front veranda. She came back to me and said if she staid in the house that night she would be killed. At her request I went out with her and made arrangements to secure her a room at the Weinmeister hotel, if it should become necessary for her to use it. When I left the hotel she met me at the corner of the street and said that all the trouble was over and she would stay at home. As we were returning to ber house I saw some one running across the street diagonally from her residence. We went back into over and she would stay at home. As we were returning to ber house I saw some one running across the street diagonally from her residence. We went back into the parlor and we were there but a short while when she again excused herself and left the room. Shortly afterwards I heard a crash as of a window sash falling. Mrs. Gilmer came into the parlor hurriedly and I saw that her head was bleeding. Again at her request I went out with her to get a doctor. I saw a sign across from the house which I thought was that of a physician, but was mistaken. We then started down Forsyth street to reach a doctor or a drug store. She appeared to be very weak and fell three times. I thought she was under the influence of a drug, for I could not handle her, although she did not weigh more than 140 or 150 pounds. It was then that the officer saw us. The screaming which the officers and others heard was after we left the house."

Mr. Mahoney made his statement in a clear and straightforward manner.

When he had concluded Mr. Corrigan said he wished to introduce a few witter the arrest, which would show that she exculpated Mr. Mahoney. Mr. Corrigan called the names of two or three newspaper reporters.

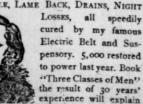

"Hold on," said the recorder guickly.

called the names of two or three newspaper reporters.

"Hold on," said the recorder quickly,
"I don't want to hear from the witnesses."
"I will dismiss the case against Mr. Mahoney," said the recorder, "because there is no direct testimony here that he struck Mrs. Gilmer. Mrs. Gilmer has stated positively that Mr. Mahoney was not to blame, and there is nothing here in the nature of evidence to contradict this. I will dismiss the case." Change of Venue for Woolf. Dr. L. I. Woolf, the attorney who was arrested last Monday and who was to have been tried before Justice Bloodworth last Tuesday, applied for a change of venue yesterday and this was granted. The case will therefore be heard by Justice Orr to-morrow morning.

Bears Made an Effort Early To Raid

SUGAR AND GAS FEATURES

the Market.

Net Changes Were Only Fractional Either Way. the Close Being Called Strong.

New York, October 20.—Today's market looked very much as though an effort was being made to test it for a rise. The bears made an abortive effort early in the day to raid the market and directed an attack against Sugar and Chicago Gas. The failure of the raid encouraged the bulls to aggressive action and there were indications of the reappearance in the market of aggressive action and the market of the some of the large buying interests which were prominent in the late rise of the market. This professional buying carried prices up quite strongly, net advances throughout the list ranging from 1 to 3 throughout the list ranging from 1 to 3 broke 2 per cent. However the general list was well main: ained and the close was strong. points. But the bulls were apparently satisfied with a short turn and they commerced to sell to realize profits about half an hour before the close. This carried prices down in some cases below last nightly close, and where net gains rentined they were in almost all cases fractional. The success of the bears was frustrated in part owing to the special strength in Sugar and Cricago Gas, upon which they relied to work a sympathesic decline in the balance of the ist. Sugar was strong on the decision of the treasury department to hold Duten remed sugars conditionally liable to the countervaining duty which applies to imported sugars upon which an export bounty is paid. Chicago Gas derived strength from rumors of a compromise with the threatened competition. The market showed considerable increase of activity as compared with the last few days, but was still almost purely professional. London they were in almost all cases fractional still almost purely professional. London changed from its recent attitude and sold stocks here. Additional reports of railroad earnings for the second week in October all show handsome increases, and many vague rumors were alloat of still more striking improvements to be shown in state-nents not yet issued. The large movement ments not yet issued. The large movement of cotton along lines recently released from quarantine restriction was shown by reports, and gave strength to the railroads affected. The excharge market continued firm, and the local money market easy. Some business is being done in the placing of loans on long sterling, which is in effect the lending of money abroad. This naturally tends to keep up the rate of exchange. The continued ease of the local money market and the larger resources in hand by interior banks owing to the large payment of debts following the crop movement are the inducements for thus deferring the movement of gold this way.

Bonds were strong in sympathy with stocks. One $250,000 block of Union Pacific collateral trust notes was sold at 69, and another block of $150,000 at the same price. Total sales $2,325,000.

United States new 4s advanced ¼ bid, and another block of $130,000 at the same price. Total sales $2,35,000.

Today's price of silver has not been equalled since July 21st, when it was 27.7-16d in Lor-ion and 59% in New York.
The present strength of silver is attributed to various causes. There is at present a good mintage in London, and there is also some covering of speculative there is also some covering of speculative short sales. This is coupled with a present scarcity of supply.

The Indian demand for silver also continues good.

The Post's Financial Cable. New York, October 20.—The Evening Post's London financial cablegram says. The stock markets were idle today, but the tone was steady Americans were especially good and closed quiet at the best though the support here is only professional. The dullest market was Brazils, which were flat on reports that the negotiations for the sale of certain Brazilian state railways to a foreign syndicate have been railways to a foreign syndicate have been suspended.

I am informed in credible quarters that the sale of American eagles yesterday and today by the Bank of England is really for Germany, the reason given being that, owifg to the lightness of many of the sovereigns withdrawn, it pays better to take eagles at the present price. The amount of eagles withdrawn today was £52,000 and the total amount of bullion taken was £72,000.

A cable from The Financial News' New York correspondent attracts much attention here. It affirms that New York banks have loaned to London a large amount of money on long sterling bills. Evidences of this are very scanty here at present, and wonder is excited as to how such an operation can pay with discount rates here at ½ per cent. Still the report is not entirely discredited.

New York, October 20.—By Associated Press: In view of our advance of yesterday the Léverpool cables at hand when our market opened were disappointing, and the first call developed a decline of 400 points. This was followed by a further loss of 304 points, predictions of a heavy movement of cotton at the ports adding to the weakness and causing the liquidation of a number of long accounts, while encouraging local shorts to increase their lines. Fears of a reaction as the result of possible overselling turned the market later. The upward movement was accelerated by less satisfactory weather conditions in the cotton belt. Prices advanced 204 points from the lowest point. On the rise there were some indications of investment buying upon a conservative scale; but it was a snall business at best, with sales for the entire session confined to 111,200 bales, clossing steady at a net decline of 608 points. New York, October 20.-Europe paid ne attention to the improvement in the American markets yesterday and instead of advancing, declined before the close to the lowest of the year. With this disappoint ment out market slowly declined to the lowest point, but showed no weakness The local trade is not disposed to follow the decline further after the experience the decline further after the experience of yesterday. They see nothing to buy upon as long as there is no change if crop ideas to change the policy of spinners. Yet they will not. The price is too low and the supply comes from the hedging operations of exporters. Receipts continue heavy and the weather in the southwest is thought to add to the crop. On the other hand, we are approaching a very low range of values which attracts an outside investment demand. The market clear side investment demand. The market ed dull with traders indisposed to a pate a further demand. The only s have been export houses against sou purchases. Southern Exchange Cotton Letter. Southern Exchange Cotton Letter.

Atlanta, October 20.—Liverpool failed to respond to the light strength in the American markets, and the selling of those who hought on the encouragement yesterday caused a decline of 4 points at the opening. The range of 3 points during the entire day tells the story of a dull and uninteresting market. There was absolutely no news of any kind. Pert receiptswere 55.-182 bales, against 47.388 and 50.322. Estimated tomorrow at New Orleans. 8,000 to 10,000, against 10,600, 12,000 and 16,000; Housdon, 11,000, against 10,200, 7,500 and 14,500. As an opinion on the market, we can only say "Cotton is cheap," and we had rather buy than sell at the present prices.

The Dry Goods Market.

New York, October 20.—The skuation in dry goods is practically unchanged. Un-favorable weather conditions, which have neretotore been a drag on the market, are giving prom.se of change and the buying from southern states, where the yellow fefrom soutthern states, where the yeilow fever panic has had a stultifying effect on the trade, begins to be heavy again. The distribution in various sections of the country is still reported rather slim. Woolen goods are still a strong feature of the market, sakes for next year being more of a tactor day by day. Cotton goods are generally less active. In staple cottons, brown goods, in both sheetings and drills, are still quiet and without feature. Export goods are in somewhat better demand, although there is little liberality d splayed by export buyers. Prints in both staple and lancy lines show no chauge and are pretty generally bought in conservative lots.

Atwood Violett, Lockwood & Co.'s

Cotton Letter. New York, October 20.- As Liverpool New York, October 20.—As Liverpool to-day did not support our reaction yesterday, there was nothing for this market but a decline, and yesterday's buyers threw over long cotton. This, together with some aggressive selling, brought about our re-cession of today. There are no evidences of increased strength in spots. With an easy closing at Liverpool, and perhaps again abundant offerings to Liverpool and the continent tonight, it may further deagain abundant offerings to Liverpool and the continent tonight, it may further depress Liverpool in the morning and bring about another decline here. Cotton must reach a po.nt where exporters and spinners will take it, not only for present needs, but future wants. These conditions have not materialized, but they may be nearer development than surface indications would promise. There continues good buying by those prepared to hold for even lower prices, but this support is not sufficient considering the adverse features already ment oned. Later on it surely will be.

Paine, Murphy & Co.'s Cotton Letter. Atlanta, October 29.—The market opened unsettled this morning at a decline of from unsettled this morning at a decline of from 4 to 5 points consequent upon the failure of the Liverpool market to respond to our improvement of yesterday afternoon. The disappointment which resulted precipitated some liquidation under the influence of which prices receded from 3 to 4 points further, but a firmer tone soon developed and prices recovered slightly, the final close being about 7 points under yesterday's close. As was the case yesterday, the market reflects an oversold condition and with any encouragement from Liverpool would doubtless experience a substantial recovery. In fact, the steadiness of the past two days would indicate that we have already practically discounted all the known unfavorable factors in the situation, and unless reports following the raising of the quarantine assume formidable proportions the ammunition of the bears will apparently have been practically exhausted. Receipts today are only moderate, the official estimate being 55,000 bales, against 40,800 last week, 48,900 last year and 53,900 in 1894. Exports continue heavy, and the demand is not likely to decrease, owing to the opportunity afforded to sceure cotton at a very low level. Notwithstanding the reports of poor trade conditions abroad, foreigners are taking as much of our cotton as last year. Apparently the bear'sh factors in the situation have been exaggerated, and as a consequence it may ultimately be found that the legislmate facts have been more than discounted. At current prices for cotton manufacturers ought to be able to realize a fair margin of profit on their manufactured lines. Furthermore, the influence of low prices is to increase consumption, and unless prices soon appreciate the consumptive requirements this season will doubtless reach such proportions that the surplus supply will not be materially increased unless the views of the extremists are realized, which the movement thus far does not appear to justify, falling as it does considerably under last year. Semi-weekly receipts, 115,248 bales, against 113,413 last year, 116,355 in 1895 and 149,350 in 1894, the big crop year. New Orleans expects tomorrow 8,000 to 10,000 bales, against 10,624 last year; Houston, 11,800, against 10,208.

Chicago, October 20.-Weakness in the changed. Wheat was steady at about yesterday's closing prices, and for a few minutes after the opening, and then it was subjected to Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter. New York, October 29.—(Special.)—The downward tendency of the cotton market was resumed today. Liverpool was very deisappointing. That market opened unchanged and afterwards lost 1½ 64d, when it had been expected to advance somewhat. Manchester advices were also unfavorable. Our market opened 4 to 6 points below Manchester advices were also unfavorable. Our market opened 4 to 6 points below last night's figures. After the opening heavy Liverpool selling resulted in future weakness. It was not all one way, however, for New Orleans sent Uberal luying orders and the demand from other sources was fair. Rece pts were again large, the section of the sources was fair. Receipts were again large, the section of the market steady. Unless Liverpool should be encouraging tomorrow, the market will probably be lower.

Indications of Revival of Foreign Demand Caused Advance in Wheat.

DECEMBER WAS THE WEAKEST

grain and provision markets during the morning was succeeded by strength later morning was succeeded by strength later on, and small advances were chronicled all around. Wheat was helped by renewal of the continental demand for American wheat, December closing %c higher. There was a slight disposition to play for a rewas a slight disposition to buy low action in corn, and a %c advance was the result. Oats closed %c%c higher. Provisions closed at a small advance for pork and ribs, with lard substantially un-some bearish influences that caused it to decline 1c during the next hour. May was not as weak as December during the time referred to, owing, it was sup-posed, to the action of the bull clique, who, as on the day before, sold December at or above 91c and bought the May when it was weak. The comparative firmness during the first few minutes was because of a further reduction in northwestern receipts and steadiness of the Liverpool and Parls markets, both of which quoted prices unchanged from the previous day's closings. The bearish news came partly from the northwest and partly from abroad. Heavy rains were reported in Ar-gentina. The Liverpool Corn Trade News gentina. The Liverpool Corn Trade News revised its previous estimates of European requirements, mak ng the amount only 12,000,000 busheis, instead of 123,000,000, as previously caiculated. That had some depressing effect, but more serious news was the reported sale at Duith of 200,000 bushels No. 1 northern wheat to Chicago for delivery on December contracts, which was made possible by the higher prices ruling here. This rather staggered the trade. December was at substantially yesterday's closing price—90% waie—and before the effect of the Duluth transaction had worn off a decline to 90% had taken place. Chicago receipts were 204 cars, of 34 over the estimates. Minneapolis and 34 over the estimates. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 837 cars, against 92) last week and 365 the corresponding day of the year previous. Atlantic port clearances of wheat and flour were smaller than Monday and Tuesday, the total being under 350,000 bushels. Bradstreet's report on the world's visible showed an increase of 4.271. day and Tuesday, the total being under 350,000 bushels. Bradstreet's report on the world's v.s.0le showed an increase of 4.211,000 bushels. About 12 o'clock the market began to show signs of firmness. Sales were reported of two car loads of No. 2 red winter at Toledo, and one cargo at Detroit for immediate export to the continent. This indication of a revival of the foreign demand encouraged local buyers, and the price began slowly to mend. December advanced to 91/4091/8c, and was bringing 91/4091/8c at the close.

Corn was steady even when wheat was weak in the forenoon, and was very firm later when wheat advanced. There was considerable buying on the theory that a reaction was about due, following the recent heavy decline. Shorts were also numerous. The foreign demand, which for two weeks has been apathetic, revived in force today. The opening was a shade easier on the liberal receipts—639 cars—and the lower cables, but the decline was soon made up. The visible increase was 2.430,000 busnels. Charters were for 575,000. December ranged from 26 to 25/4c, c.osing %c nigher at 262.

Oats were higher and firm at the advance. Trading was not important, the firmness being due principally to light of ferings. New York aid considerable buying all day. Elevator interests were fair sellers early, as usual. Sympathy with corn was an important factor. Receipts were 242 cars. Lecember ranged from 18% to 18%c.

Provisions were steady on a small amount of business. The continued reports

Provisions were steady on a small amount of business. The continued reports from the yellow fever d stricts caused a small opening decline. Shorts were good buyers, and the cash demand was considerably improved, which facts caused a recovery of the opening decline and a small advance besides. The nrmness of wheat and corn helped toward the end. At the close December pork was 5s higher at $1.50; December lard unchanged at $1.50; $1.50, and December ribs 2%c higher at $1.50. 4.50. Swanson & Co.'s Grain Letter.

Atlanta, October 20.—As was the case yesterday, there was comparatively little news to influence the market either way to a great extent. Duliness, combined with an indescribable degree of easiness, was manifest. Leverpool and Paris cables were practically unchanged, although later English advices indicated strength in that market at ½d advance. The Corn Trade News was reported to have materially reduced its estimate of British wheat requirements by 50,000,000 bushels. Northwest receipts were smaller. December wheat opened at 90%@31c. The market held steady at about 90%c for a time and then a gradual decline ensued, carrying the price down to 90%. The weakness became quite pronounced on the promulgation of reports relative to heavy rains in Argentine and a sale of 250,000 bushels of Duluth wheat for shipment to Chicago. There was little selling pressure during the decline, and there was more of a lack of demand than desire to liquida'se. Kansas City reported light receipts and prospects of a continuance. This, with stronger cables, strength at St. Louis ard several cargoes sold for export soon affected the market and an advance was started which continued to the close, when 91½@91%c was reached.

Paine, Murphy & Co.'s Grain Letter.

Atlanta, October 20.—Quite a bearish feeling existed in wheat during the early session today. The specularive demand seems very poor and offerings, although not heavy, soon depressed the price about 2/40 per bushel fof December. May, however, was relatively much stronger and the spread between the two months was again narrowed. This led traders to be lieve that some of the larger longs were quietly selling December and buying May. Liverpool opened at unchanged prices, advancing 3/40 and closed 3/40 higher than yesterday. There were reports of more rain in Argentine and, according to The Corn Trade News, the requirements of France, Hungary and Italy have been reduced from 128,000,000 to 72,00,000 bushels per year; but inasmuch as the amouncement had no apparent effect on Liverpool, the effect on the Ch'cago market was but temporary. A sale of 20,000 bushels No. 1 northern at Duluth for shipment to Chleago was used as a bear argument, but received little or no consideration, inasmuch as it will merely increase local contract stocks that much at the expense of northwestern contract stocks, which are very light now. During the latter portion of the session the feeling became much stronger, and an advance of about 13/6 per bushel was recorded from the low point. The seaboard claims a fresh export demand from the continent has sprung up, and two cargoes at Toledo and one at Detroit were reported sold for export. The buying in a specula-Paine, Murphy & Co.'s Grain Letter.

tive way was quite general, but could not be individualized. Northwestern receipts were moderate, as were also seaboard clearance. Corn opened easy, but there was little or Corn opened easy, but there was little or no selling pressure, and the marker advanced later in sympathy with wheat. One car of new corn was received this morning, and graded No. 2 yellow.

The trading in provisions has been small, but hog products were steady. There was a little speculative buying by brokers, who were supposed to be acting for packers. The cash demand during the past two days has improved considerably.

Mrs. Sallie F. O'Keefe announces the marriage of her daughter Maud and Mr. Drury J. Powers which took place Tuesday, October 119, 1877.

The wedding was a harpy but quiet one solemnized at the home of the bride's mother. Only the relatives of both partles witnessed the impressive ceremony, and Mr. and Mrs. Powers left at once for a trip north. The bride wore a becoming traveling gown of brown and carried bride's roses. As Miss O'Keefe, she was a young woman admired and beloved for her bright mind and womanly traits of character. She is possessed of literary ability and is among the youngest and brightest of Atlanta's club women.

Mr. Powers is widely and popularly known throughout Georgia. Though a native of Macon, he has for a long time been a resident of Atlanta, and is prominently identified in railroad circles. The mothers' meeting of the Atlanta South Side Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in Good Templar's hall, at 3 o'clock p. m.

Commissioner Howell Erwin brought up his scheme for locating the proposed re-formatory at the old waterworks station, but no action was taken. The subject was discussed for some time, several of the commissioners agreeing with Colonel Er-win and some opposing him.

WILL MEET THIS AFTERNOON,

The Committee on Municipal Ownership To Assemble in Mayor's Office. The committee to investigate the practi-cability of municipal ownership of an electric light plant will meet at the mayor's office in the city hall at 4 o'clock this af-ternoon. A full attendance is desired. Plans will be discussed for prosecuting the investigation, and work will commence in the near future. The committee will study the experience of other cities which have made a success of municipal owner-ship, and will call for the testimony of experts as to whether municipal lighting would prove more economical.

President H. M. Atkinson, of the Georgia Electric Light Company, is out of the city. and will be gone for several days. Chairman Hirsch stated yesterday he did not know whether the investigation would be defer-red until Mr. Atkinson's return or not. He will leave this for the committee to decide this afternoon.

Mayor Collier will probably be present at the meeting. He is strongly in favor of municipal ownership if it is proved beyond a doubt lights could be run cheaper than under the present contract. The Library Association. The forthcoming meeting of the Library Association in Macon is a matter of state interest, since it will undoubtedly bring about a progressive movement in the libraries of the state, and one of great local interest since the president of the newly organized association is a young Atlanta woman of beauty, prominence and popularity, Miss Anne Wallace, As librarian of the Young Men's library of Atlanta she has not only attained a reputation throughout the state for her profriency in that office, but has wonderfully developed the interest of that institution. She has carefully studied the best library methods and those in practice in the largest of the country, and besides is a young woman of unusual literary judgment. Continually in touch with the current literature of the day, she evinces her cultivated taste in the selection of the books that are in circulation from the library rooms, and seems to be the accepted critic "as to what is really good" by the very large sociated in her library work. It was after visiting a number of the largest libraries in the north that Miss Wallace conceived the idea of organizing a library association in Georgia, where the various librarians might meet at stated times and discuss their mutual interests at the same time comparing their methods with those of other libraries. In her project Miss Wallace found ready sympathy on the part of the women of the state federation of Georgia, who are making every effort not alone to enlarge, but in every way develop the library movement throughout the state. Mrs. John King Ottley, the president of the Atlanta Woman's Club, and deeply interested in li-brary work, invited Miss Wallace and the librarians of the state to meet with the club women during the time of the organization of the library association in Atlanta. gathering of prominent and cultivated men and women from all parts of the state. The addresses made by them inspired a new interest in the library development, and the new organization, of which Miss Wallace is president, may be said to have in co-operation with it in every undertak-ing the Georgia Federation of Woman's Clubs, the largest woman's organization in Georgia.

In recognition of this the president of the federation, Mrs. William B. Lowe, and Mrs. Eugene Heard, chairman of the li-brary committee, and Mrs. John King Ottley, one of the foremost and most brilliant among club women, are among those who will make addresses at the forthcoming convention in Macon.

The programme, as outlined by Miss Wallace, will be one of universal interest and brilliancy and the universal coincidence of such a distinguished organization having as its president a young and beautiful woman, will make the convention one distinctly memorable. Ouite a party of prominent Atlanta people on in attendance at the will be in Macon in attendance meeting of the Library Association. Woman's Press Convention

In Nashville Among the many convocations of women that have taken place in Nashville during the Centennial, none have inspired more interest than the convocation of press women to be in session October 23d. There will be a gathering of press women from all parts and the addresses to be made and papers to be read are from women occupying responsible positions on the leading papers of the country. Many pleasures will be accorded the press women during their visit to the Centennial, and it is scarcely an inappropriate statement, appearing on a woman's page, when it is asserted that the success of the great enterprises undertaken by women these days depends upon the recognition and encouragement given them by the women of the press. Whether it be in the woman's departments of expositions, in their federation clubs or charitable institutions, it is vor and enthusiastic account of their various unions, inspires not alone enthusiasm among the members, but demands public recognition for, and interest in them. The press woman in reality holds a posi-tion of trust and responsibility that enti-tles her not only to a dignity among her ex, but as a factor, though new, one inspensable in the profession of modern urnalism.

Now that the press women have acquired this position, it remains with them to up-hold it, and to prove themselves worthy of it in all its dignity and honor. Katherine Nobles, editor of the woman's department of The Daily States, presides as chairman at the forthcoming press conocation. Fifty thousand cheering men and wo men, dressed in uniforms of gray, will be the inspiring sight that will be witnessed Atlanta for three days next year, when the confederate veterans meet here in grand Uuniforms will almost certainly be worn by the veterans. Never before have they worn the gray at the reunions, but now there is a strong and almost general sentiment in favor of having uniforms just like the brave warriors wore in the times when they won their laurels and received their

On Friday, November 5th, the comman ders of all the camps of confederate vet-erans in the Georgia division will meet in Atlanta in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association building, on Pryor street, and confer together on important matters relating to the grand reunion to be held here next year. Among other matters will be the consideration of methods of co-operating with the Sons and Daughters of Confederate Veterans.

The most important question will be that of uniforms. It has, been suggested that every veteran wear a gray uniform. This suggestion has taken like wild fire. The veterans have almost unanimously embraced the proposition and if signs count for aught, the entire state will join in the move for a more elaborate celebration of

The commanders of the different camps will confer together and decide upon the advisability of wearing uniforms. The uniforms will consist of the confederate blouse and the confederate hat. The entire outfits can be purchased at from $4 to $6 each, and nearly every veteran will be willing to spend this small amount for the grand oc-

The veterans will not be the only wearers of the gray. It is proposed that every mem-ber of the camps of the Sons of Confederate Veterans and the camps of the Daughters of the Confederacy will appear in full uniform. Altogether the number of men and women in uniform would then aggregate about fifty thousand people. General Clement A. Evans, major general commanding the Georgia division, said yesterday that he intended that the reunion should bring to Atlanta the largest crowd ever assembled here. The railroads have already consented to rates that are almost equal to free transportation. With the splendid railroad facilities possessed by the city, General Evans thinks we ought to have the greatest crowd ever brought here. The crowd will certainly be several times as large as that at Nashville during the reunion there this year.

"We intend to bring every veteran in Georgia here," said General Evans yester-He said that if any were to poor to pay their way, the people of the counties where such persons lived would be asked to pay their railroad fare and that the vet-erans would be fed and sheltered after they to work early and by next fall they expect to have every veteran in the south inter ested in the reunion. Bleeding Piles.

John Jackson ran his sister out of the often dangerous disease readily cured without pain or inconvenience.

Dago Into the Police Court. A dago, a Chinaman and a rat were the leading features in a rich case before Judge Andy yesterday afternoon. Victor Kamix, a fruit vender of Italian ancestry, played a great joke on Quong Lee, a washee-washee of Chinese ancestry, and Kamix was arraigned in the police ccurt for disorderly conduct.

Yesterday morning Kamix went into Quong's launary at No. 1 East Mitchell street and inquired about the latest quotations on washing. As he turned to leave he left a paper sack on the Chinaman's table and said he wished to let the package remain there until he returned.

REASONS FOR PROMOTION OF PATROLMEN

Both Measures Will Be Considered by the Board of Police Commissioners at Its Next Session.

Two very important matters are now under consideration by the board of police

One is a resolution calling for the grad ing of the officers of the department from the chief down through the sergeants.

The other is a rule to promote the men of the department, but there is no rule stating who is next in command, although by a sort of general consent, there is a senior captain, who takes his place when he is absent or sick. Yet even this is not

And as for the sergeants, there is great importance for several reasons, chief among which was that there were liable to arise occasions when it would be necessary for the department to know, at a moment's notice, who to look to as the officer in command. If there should be a riot and the chief or the captain in command should be disabled, there should be another

there to immediately take his place and the men under him should know at once that he was the person to look to as the commander. Sometimes a captain or ser-geant is detained from his post of duty and it is impossible for him to get word

A committee has also been appointed by the police board to look into the feasibility of promoting the members of the department for good service. A patrolman would then have some incentive besides the holding of his job to do his full duty. He would feel that a faithful performance of duty would entitle him not only to hold his place, but also keep him in line of promotion. Besides this, as was urged by one member of the board, a promotion of the men would serve to keep politics out of the department, and the question of a political "pull" would do a man no good unless he was entitled to recognition for good work. Both of the committees will report at the next meeting of the board, and it is probable that both will be favorably acted upon cery store near the corner of Butler and Harris streets. Recently Sam had become very troublesome and he was requested to give up the place. He did so and when he left, carried a wheelbarrow with him which belonged to Mr. Berger. He had been requested to give it up but refused. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Berger saw a little son of Gaines come along the street with the wheelbarrow, and taking it from him, rolled it into the wagon yard, which is behind the store, and locked the soon came along and demanded the wheelbarrow. Mrs. Berger, who was the only one at the place, refured. Gaines started into the yard through the store to get the barrow. Mrs. Berger blocked his way and said that he should not have it. The negro gave her a stunning blow on the face and went away. Mr. Berger and his brother came home a little after that and had the negro arrested. He was carried to the police barracks, but there the case was dismissed against him when the warrant was taken out. He may be tried be
